“The Times They Are A-Changin’” according to a contemporary song ● Change may not be appreciated, but it is certain ● Change may temporarily disrupt life, and yet it is a necessary part of improvement ● A modification of ideas that incorporates new concepts makes up a large portion of learning.

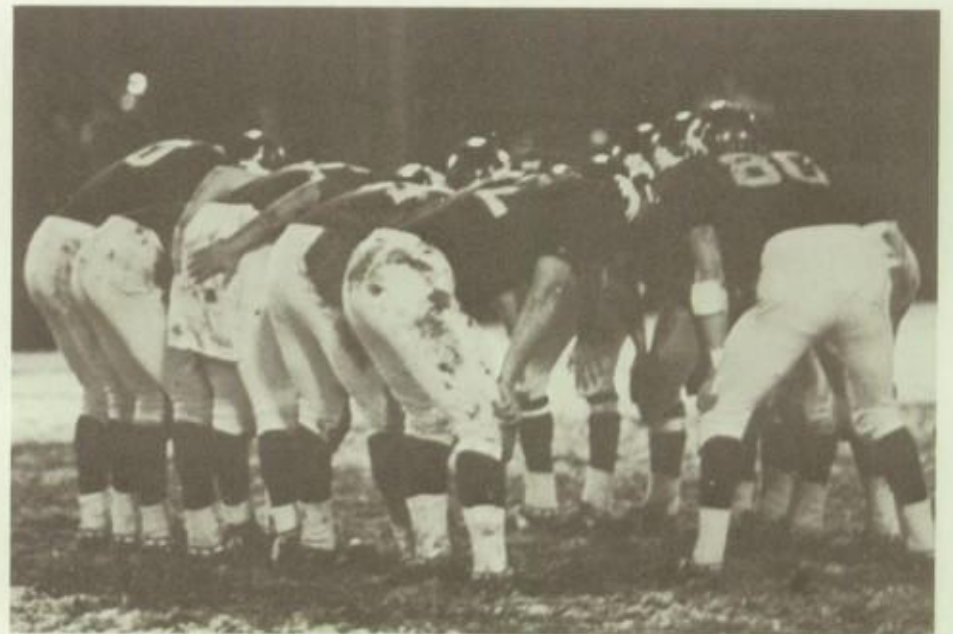

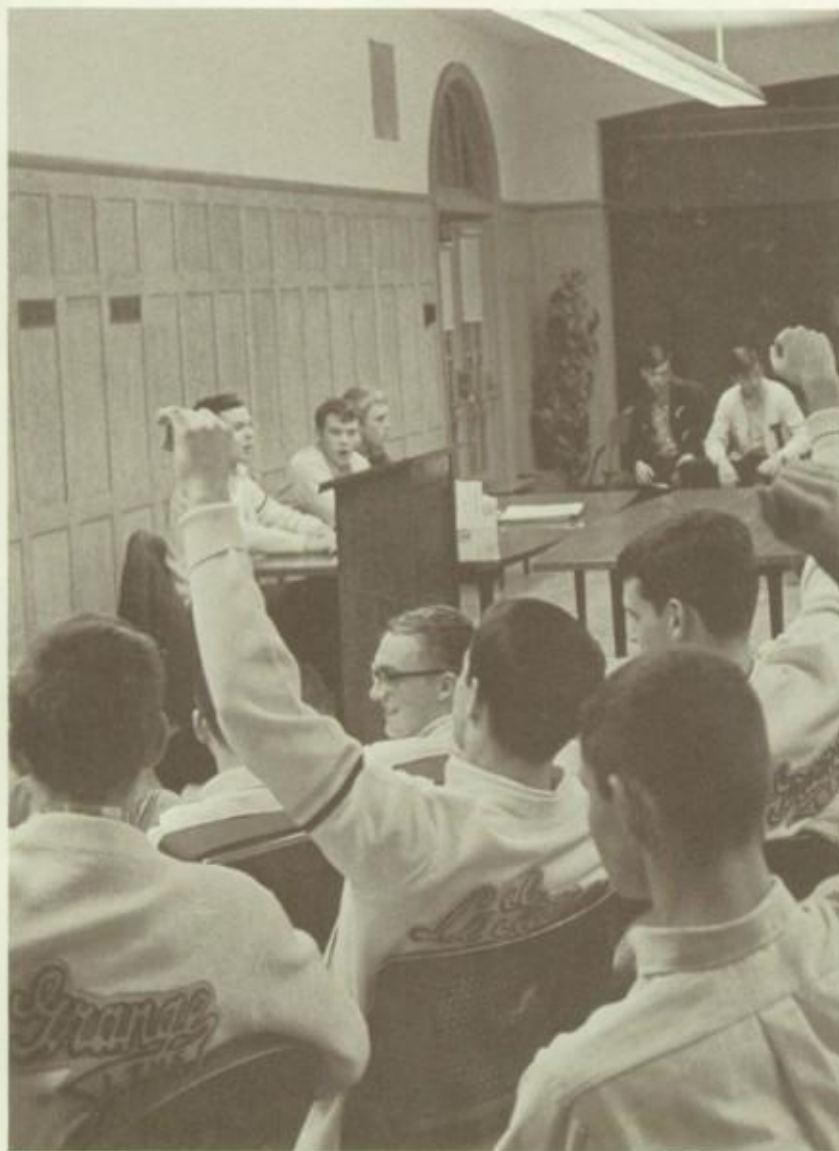

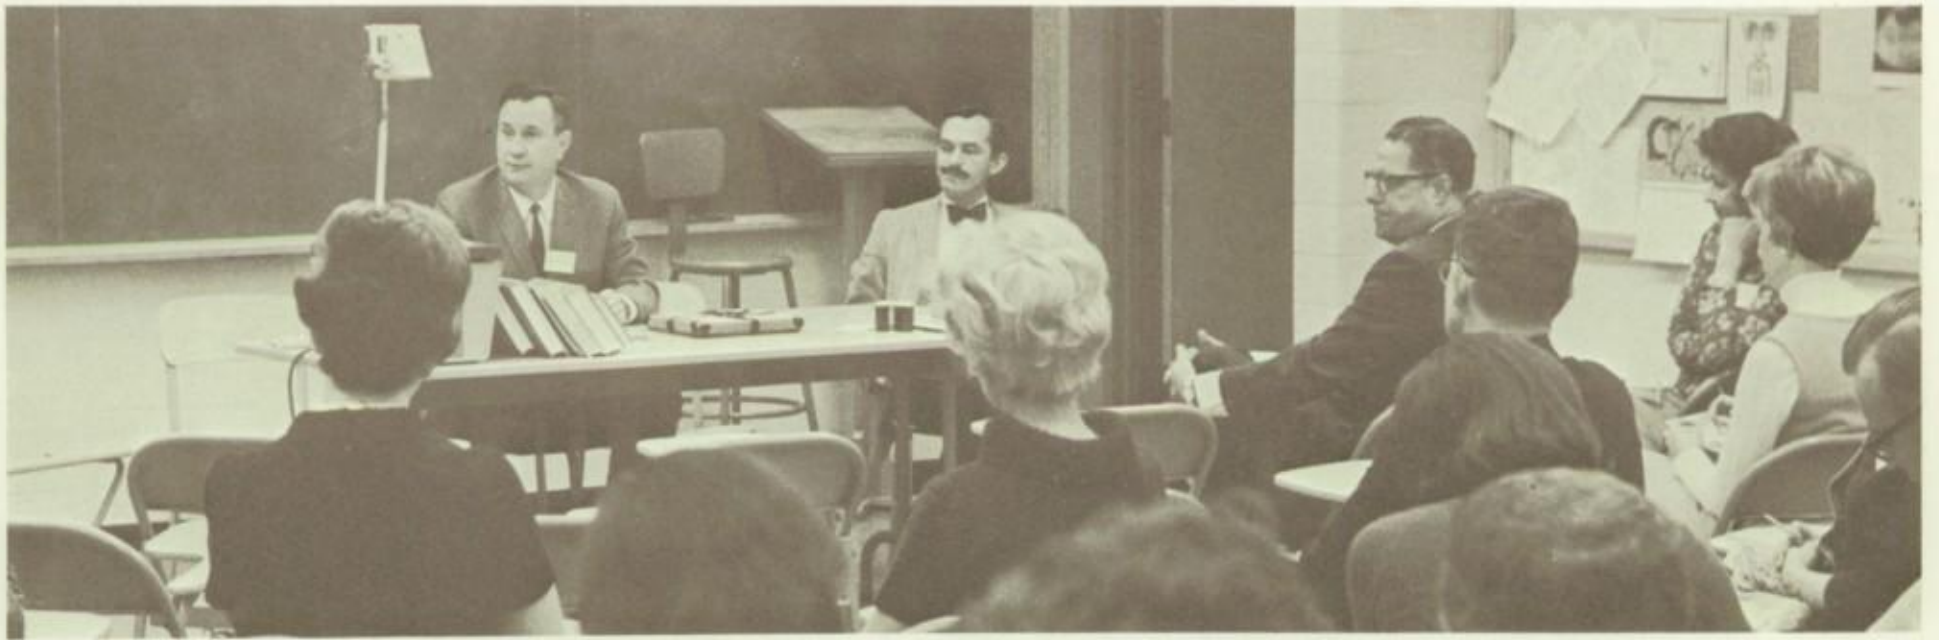

Changes subtly enhance tradition

An idea is the forerunner of change ● Through the exchange of opinions, plans for innovations which will improve present programs can be formulated ● Agreement in ideas results in co-operation among members of a department, a team, a club, or an organization ● But conversely, dissension may accomplish an airing of many views, permitting the discovery of the most satisfactory plan.

Modification is a part of change

A pre-season of long, hard practice can be justly rewarded by a successful season ● A well-waged campaign results in the election to an office of responsibility ● In classes, activities, and friendship, the elation of receiving an honor—sometimes small, yet meaningful—is the culmination of success.

Stability underlies changing times

The extra-curricular aspects of high school rarely remain fixed from year to year ● Owing to new interests, activities may be added; because of lack of enthusiasm or need, some may be dropped; others have a continued place and seldom change ● These activities and special events are not so much maintained by tradition as they are supported by the common unity and sense of purpose of participants ● Whether large or small, extra-curricular activities encourage a dimension of involvement not met in the classroom, providing for a greater experience in school.

'Farmland Frolics' reaps memories-to-be

The queen and her court: Sue Haase, Cindy Olson, Queen Barb Binder, Kathy Stout, and Marley Bright.

The multi-colored streamers of the unhoisted canopy plus the rows of folding chairs hamper the movements of the decorators.

Two strategic days off, a crisp blue sky, and the enthusiasm and friendship only homecoming can evoke made Homecoming 1967 something to be remembered twenty-five years later. The honored Class of '43 alumni renewed old friendships and entered into the spirit of homecoming with a luncheon, pep rally, skit, dinner-dance, and float which featured their undefeated, unscored-upon football team. Teachers' Institute and Columbus Day provided two much-appreciated and well-used days for frantic float-builders. "Farmland Frolics," culminating months of planning, officially began with the Queens' Preview, "Settlers' Sweethearts." Queen nominees waited anxiously for the results of the election to be announced at the Friday night pep rally, "Raisin' the Roof."

Queen Barb Binder reigned over the parade, "Pace Through Plentiful Prairies." It was held early Saturday morning to allow winning floats, from the Forum, the Junior Class, and Theatre Board, to travel to RB where the game was held because of construction on Emmond Field. After almost four anxious quarters of stalemate, the home-away-from-home game, "Plow Down the Demons," ended in victory for the Lions over Maine East, 7-0, with a touchdown in the last seconds of play. The honors reaped, the semi-formal dance, "Golden Harvest," concluded the week of festivities of Homecoming 1967.

Last moments of Homecoming game prove fruitful

In a daze of excitement and joy, newly-elected queen Barb Binder is escorted from the stage.

Student Council organizes events for LT

Sue O'Leary and Linda Robert discover long hours of hard work are necessary to gather the funds for a successful AFS drive.

Leading off the major activities of Student Council this year was the '68 Homecoming, "Farmland Frolics". Under the direction of president Lee Cunningham, a Constitutional Revision Committee was set up within the council to inspect the existing constitution and to indicate necessary changes. In response to R-B and Hinsdale's courtesy in loaning their football fields to us for homegames, Council joined with Pep Club to send huge thank-you cards signed by many students. Highlighting the busy winter schedule was the annual Christmas dance at Melody Mill, "Sleighride to the Stars". With Letterman's Club, Council also co-sponsored a sock-hop to raise money for blazers to be worn by students representing LT at athletic and other school events.

An all school effort under the leadership of the cafeteria beautification committee resulted in a more pleasant atmosphere in the cafeterias.

Various conventions held throughout the year yielded ideas useful in improving operation techniques. Though Council has been a contributor to the Hall of Ideas at the State Student Council Convention, this year it received the honor of being named convention chairman.

Discussing improvements in the dress code, Mr. Hanson draws examples from the results of the recent Comm Period Discussion.

Bridging the gap between the Student Council and the students of LT was the purpose of Representative Assembly. In the fall, each communications groups elected a delegate who represented the students in general discussions over the finances of the student association and school policies, such as this year's debate concerning the dress code. Surveys were taken pertaining to such topics as plagiarism, the Corral, and the dress code, under the auspices of the assembly. Although supported by Representative Assembly, the amendment to the school constitution allowing for freshman representation on student council failed to pass. On the plus side, the assembly organized a successful school spirit week, highlighted by class and club participation days. In these ways, Representative Assembly progressed towards its set goal of increased communication between the elected officers of the student association and the members.

Representative Assembly voices student opinions

Dissent over the school dress code is aired in individual comm groups, as Rep. Assem. delegate Jack Shebo leads the discussion.

Linda joins LT family; becomes an active member

While riding in the Homecoming Parade, Linda Robert shows her pride in being a student of LT with a friendly wave of the hand and an exuberant smile.

Linda obligingly turns the pages so that Wendy can better concentrate on a difficult organ piece.

An evening game of cards common to both nations enables Linda and the Louders to relax after dinner.

A bouquet of roses and a friendly sign help to create a warm welcome for foreign student, Linda Robert.

"New Zealand . . . isn't that near Austria?" "No I think it's closer to Borneo." "No, it's . . ."

In past years, A.F.S. has brought awareness of other countries to LT's students, but with this year's arrival of Linda Robert from New Zealand, the committee also brushed up the LT's knowledge of geography. Linda, a native of Christchurch, New Zealand, came to stay with the Louders. Although we know little of New Zealand, Linda claims that she found Americans lived up to the New Zealander's opinion of their being friendly, open people. Coming from a small country (of 2½ million) she found America big and advanced in many ways. She also discovered many differences between the two schools—such as sports, pep assemblies, and not having to wear a uniform.

Because she was from "down under" she noticed many differences in climate and enjoyed her first white Christmas and the opportunity to go to Florida at Easter.

Through her active participation in GAA, Senior Leaders, AFS days and weekends, basketball and football games, and giving speeches to different groups, Linda became a proud part of LT.

"Everyone at L. T. made me feel so much at home that I felt it was really 'my' school and enjoyed every moment of my whole wonderful year."

Although American history is somewhat foreign to Linda, she becomes more familiar with it with the help of his sister Wendy.

Didier finds America interesting but rushed

At about 10:00 on a summer morning, a small group of LT students stood in front of Peter Olson's house and, with a touch of anxiety, waited for "the arrival." A little later another car pulled up with the invaluable cargo from France: Didier Pain.

Didier enjoyed "the comfort of life in the suburbs" but he was also affected by the rush of the city. He found school to be easier academically at LT, while the rules of conduct were more severe. The pep assemblies and the student enthusiasm on these occasions impressed him. His interests placed him on Theatre Board and Pen and Inklings staff. During his stay he developed a taste for Mac's hamburgers and enjoyed the fire drills.

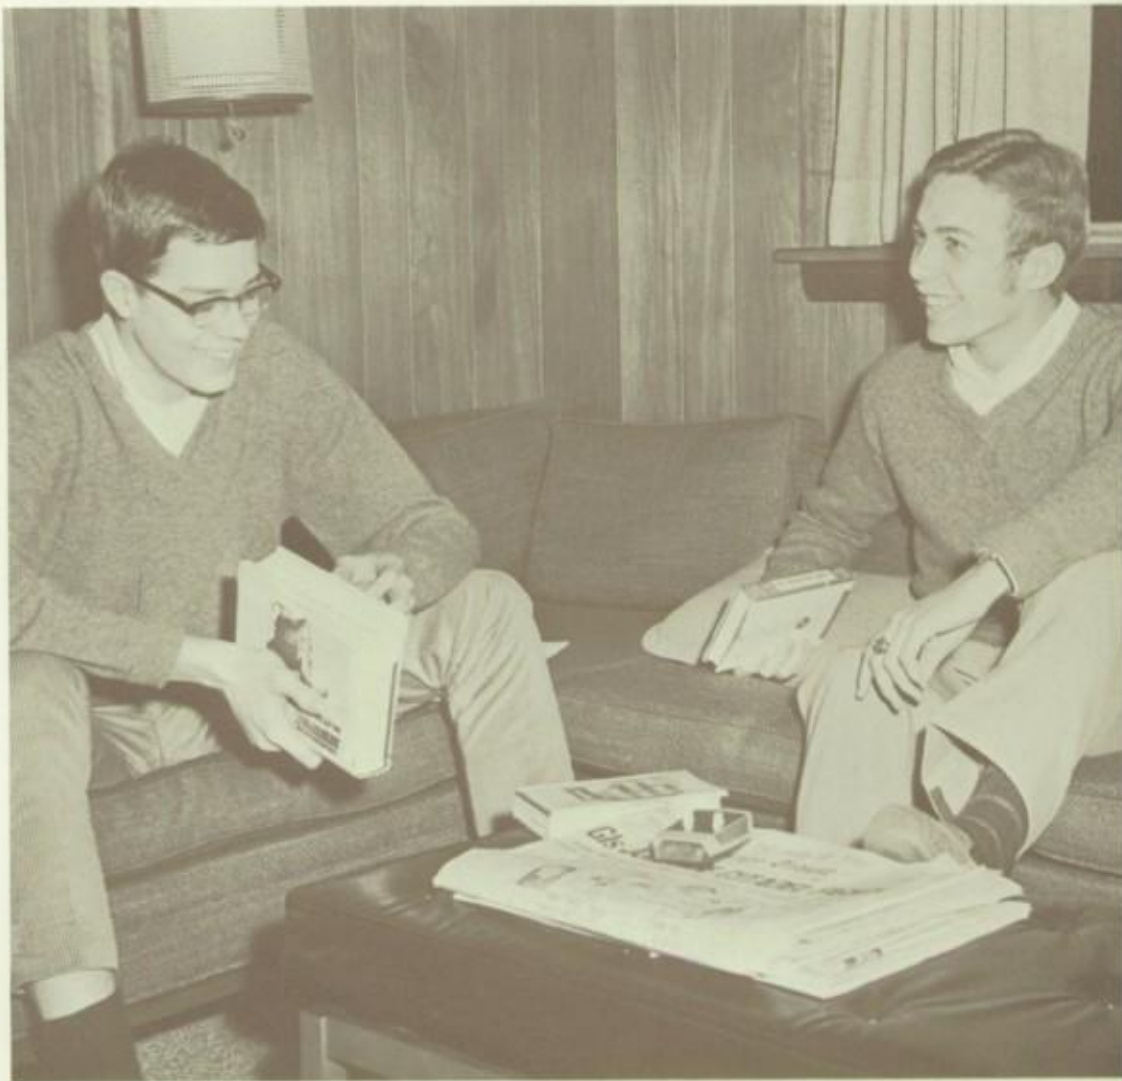

"The people, if not always friendly, were always sociable."

Peter finds a humorous break in his homework as Didier attempts to complete an assignment.

Family talk absorbs Didier, as he and the Olson family begin dinner.

Exchanging ideas on current books, Didier and Pete relax during an all too infrequent leisure period after dinner.

Pete and Didier find that, although they share a room, homework is most efficiently done individually.

His environment still rather unfamiliar, Didier rides in the Homecoming parade, more of a spectator than those on the curb.

Guiding and coordinating the activities of all the boys at LT is the goal of Boys Club. Under the direction of Mr. David Gianuzzi, sponsor, president Jim Suchomel, and a selected board, social activities and service projects were planned to benefit the student body as well as the community. Of immeasurable value to the whole school was the annual publishing of the Student Directory. Other primary undertakings were co-sponsoring a float with Girl's Club, which encouraged cooperation from all classes, and arranging a semi-formal in March entitled "The Great Race." Additional projects were planned, including a book drive for a Chicago community house, adoption and financial support of a little Korean orphan girl, and a scholarship for a deserving College of Du Page student.

Appraising eyes of Corral members pass over the names and pictures of the candidates just prior to the Corral board elections.

Refaced Corral expands facilities, entertainment

The Corral may have a new face but it is just as warm and friendly inside as ever. Because of the construction of a new addition, the Corral did not open until Homecoming this year, but it was bigger and better than ever before, not only in size but in total membership. The badly needed addition greatly expanded the size of the Corral. It provided a larger canteen, more washrooms, a larger dance floor, a new garage for working on the Homecoming float and Corral Show props, and a three-sided stage. In order to raise most of the money needed for the addition, bonds were sold to the community by over seven hundred students.

Local combos became a regular Friday and Saturday night entertainment, although special big nights were scheduled about once a month, featuring such groups as the "Cryan' Shames" and the "New Colony Six." As always, the Corral Show provided the necessary income needed to operate the Corral and to pay back the money borrowed to finance the addition. Much hard work went into the operation of the Corral this year as in other years to provide a smooth-running organization.

Schoolwork forgotten, Corral members take time to enjoy listening to the music of a group.

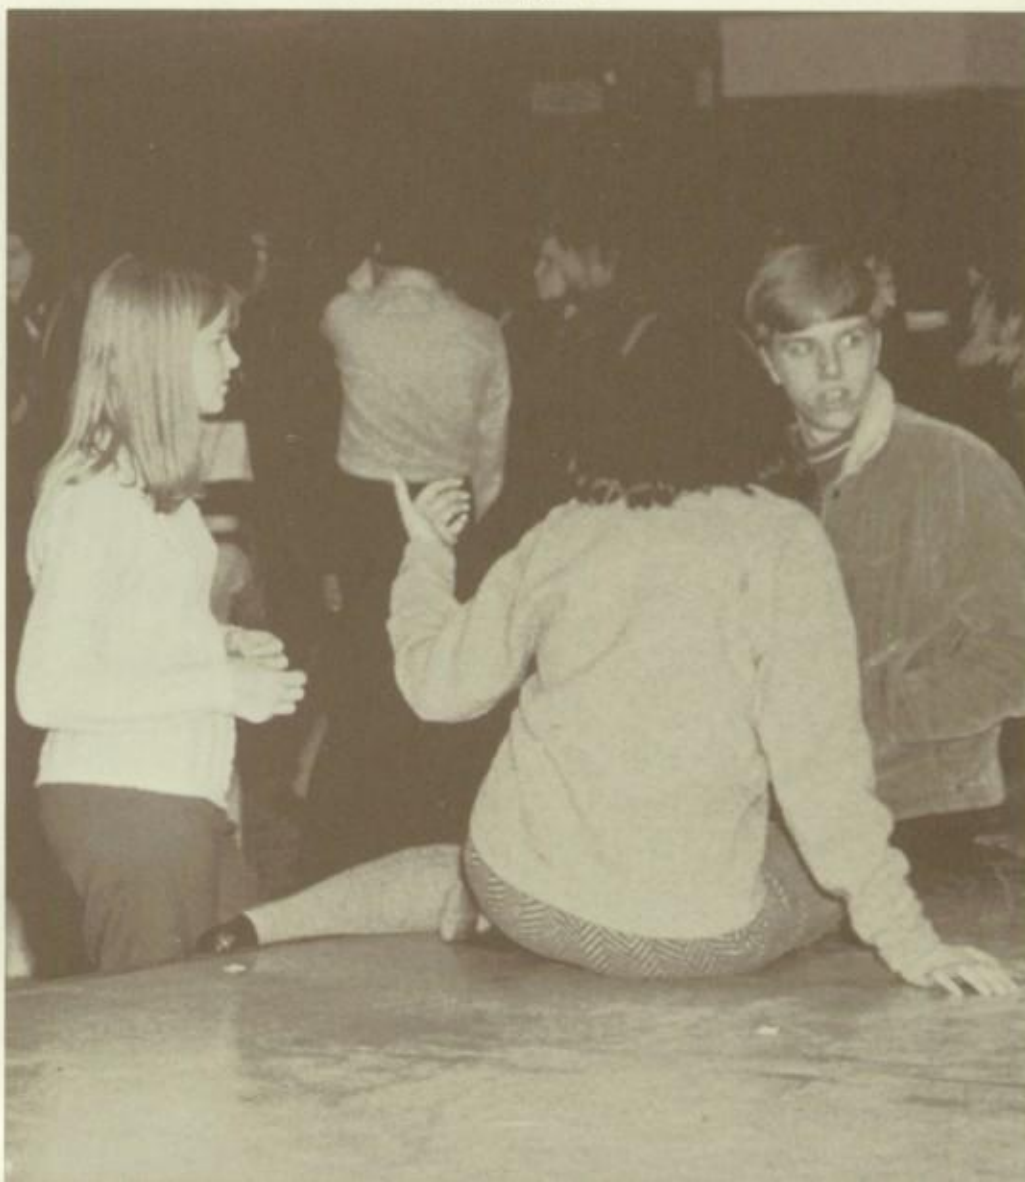

As the band begins the first song of the night, the rapidly-growing groups of spectators move in and begin to dance.

Participation earns prized Honor Society recognition

Adding 104 new senior members to those already elected as juniors, the LT chapter of the National Honor Society brought its total Class of 1968 membership to 162. This sum represents approximately fifteen percent of the senior class. The faculty committee made the selections on the basis of class rank, evidence of leadership in extracurricular activities, contributions to the school, and personality. Each member signed the official roster as a symbol of membership in one of the most honored groups among high school students.

Proud of his new recognition, Mike Milner signs his name in the National Honor Society register.

Outstanding service and work on either the Tabulae or Lion qualified staffers for election to the society. Each spring members of the National Thespian Society are chosen under the direction of past Thespians and sponsor, Mr. David Thompson. Eligibility for membership is based on points awarded for participation in school plays during the past year. Although acting ability is fundamental, contributions to make-up, publicity, direction, and scenery designing also are considered. The Society's activities are highlighted by the traditional initiation dinner.

Designed to acquaint students with the theater, a summer school course, Theatre Workshop, stressed dramatic skills and history of the theater. The climax of the course was the production of "Little Mary Sunshine," a satirical musical romance. The play, involving a fumbling duel between a renegade Indian and a whiter-than-white Mountie captain, utilized creative theater techniques to improve the production. An impressive finale, including flag-waving and an artificial blizzard onstage, completed the hilarious melodrama.

In addition to presenting the play, the group journeyed to Stratford, Ontario, to the Stratford Festival where they attended several Shakespearean plays and went sight-seeing as well as rehearsing their production.

The 1967 Fall Play, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," by George M. Cohan, satirized the stereotyped characters and improbable plots typical of melodramas at the turn of the century. After wagering with a friend that he could write a complete novel in one day and one night, the main character, Mr. Magee, retreated to a mountain lodge for his twenty-four hour test. During the course of the evening, he was interrupted by strange events and characters who all created an incredible night for Magee.

Surprises on two levels met the audience in the last few moments of the play. The strange visitors turned out to have been nothing more than actors hired by Magee's friend to show the ridiculous improbability of his story plots. But on a second level of irony, the play was revealed to be merely a look into the mind of Magee as he wrote, so that the events of the play were just figments of Magee's imagination being translated into the plot for his novel.

"Antigone," by Jean Anouilh, is a modern adaptation based on the ancient Greek tragedy of Oedipus. Directed by Mr. David Thompson, this year's Winter Play dealt with a conflict of power between man and God. Creon, Antigone's brother, who was accused of betraying the city, be left unburied and dishonored after his death. To bury her brother meant certain death under Creon's law, but to leave him rotting was a sin against the gods and man. In a like manner, Creon had no easy decision to make. For the good of the state, he felt obliged to uphold his edict—although his will was destroying his beloved niece and alienating his son, who loved Antigone. The conflict between Creon's philosophy of necessity and Antigone's idealism provides the impetus for the tragic resolution of action in Antigone's suicide.

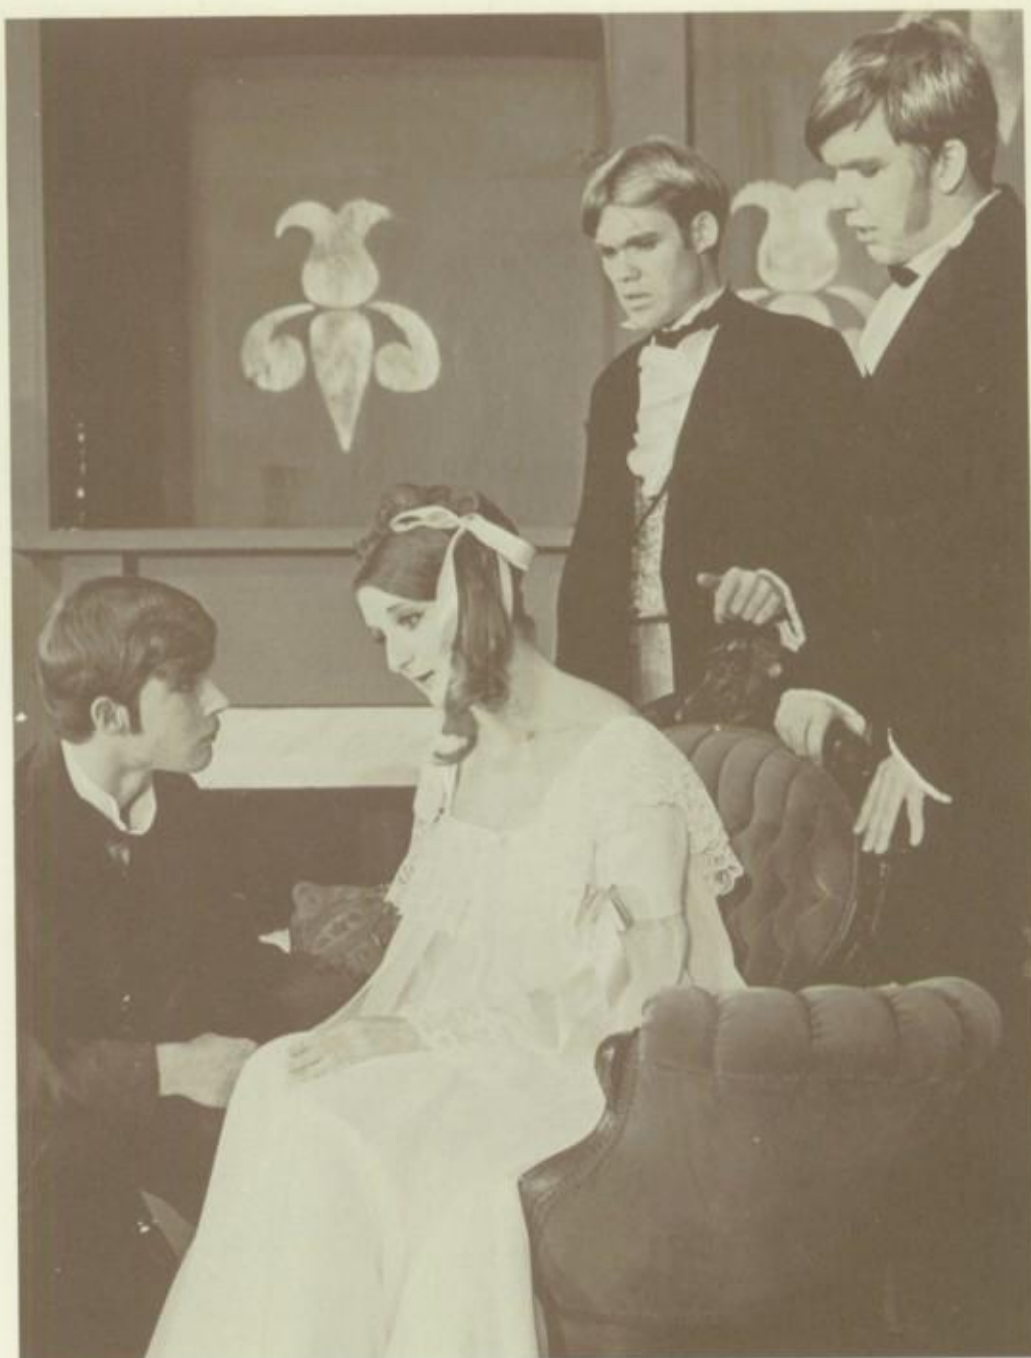

Van Helsing delivers to Miss Wells, the maid, the explicit directions that she must follow Lucy in order to protect her.

The Theater Department chose the Melodrama, Dracula, as this year's Spring Play. The story line centers around a strange malady contracted by Lucy, the daughter of a famous doctor. Various physical and spiritual cures are attempted before it is finally realized that Lucy has become the victim of a vampire. Through the efforts of Lucy's lover and her father, the vampire is killed, thereby removing the curse from Lucy. An eerie atmosphere was sustained throughout the play by utilizing melodramatic organ music, special stage entrances and a translucent portrait.

Presidential election is inspiration for musical

The 1968 presidential elections prompted Choir's presentation of Of Thee I Sing, George Gershwin's musical comedy satirizing elections in the United States. In his campaign, John P. Wintergreen, presidential nominee, ignores important issues and concentrates rather on the universal subject of love. The love candidate sweeps the country, sponsoring a nation-wide contest to determine Miss White House. However, Wintergreen marries a secretary, Mary Turner, and the jilted beauty contest winner creates tense conditions, which finally result in an attempted presidential impeachment. The try fails as it is announced that Wintergreen is about to be a father. All ends well as the contest winner marries the vice-president, and the presidential family is increased to four with the arrival of twins.

Doing double duty, the Chief Justice inaugurates Wintergreen as president and marries him to Mary Turner.

Honoring the visiting foreign students from various high schools in the area, this year's Obirin Show was entitled "Around the World in Eighty Minutes." Chorus lines, folk songs, and skits depicted scenes in other lands, and then the focus turned to American and her unique contribution to the theater, the musical comedy. A medley of songs from musicals led to the finale which included the entire cast and foreign students joining in singing "This World is Your World." Marshall Vente's Quintet provided music for the show. Proceeds from the show went to LT's sister school in Japan, Obirin Gauken. New twists to the show this year were the participation of visiting foreign students in the finale and the video-taping of the show.

The '68 Corral Show, "Toto, Too," presented a major break in the traditional form of previous shows. Original music, completely student-written and arranged, was incorporated into the plot. Under the direction of Mr. David Thompson, Frank Baum's "Wizard of Oz" was adapted into a musical comedy by the student writers and directors.

After being carried away from Kansas City in the middle of her night club act, Dorothy finds herself stranded in a land of magic glasses, shoes, and improbable characters. Along with her manager, Toto, Dorothy is besieged by witches, monkeys, and other unusual citizens on her way back to Kansas City.

Committees comprised of Corral members handled the more technical aspects of show-producing. A major portion of the money needed to run and maintain the Corral was raised by the record-breaking '68 Corral Show.

A short glance over the script reveals a need for slight alterations by Corral Show writers Mary Thompson, Laurel Knott and Dietrich Snelling.

A student finds that every spare moment is valuable when nightly Corral Show chorus line rehearsals deprive study time.

"My, how you've grown, Nels," remarks Aunt Sigrid as Nels makes his unexpected entrance after staying in the upstairs of the house to avoid relatives.

Dagmar cradles Uncle Elizabeth protectively in her arms, sheltering him from the family's scorn.

The joys and sorrows of a poor Norwegian family were expressed in the South Campus Play, "I Remember Mama," directed by Mrs. Holstein.

Katrin, oldest of four children, opened the play by reading a portion of her first-sold story which recounts her life with the family. During the weekly counting of Papa's hard-earned money, Aunt Trina interrupts the family by timidly informing Mama of her engagement to a Mr. Peter Thorkelson. Sometime later, Uncle Chris descends upon the family only to find one of the children, Dagmar, critically ill. Upon Dagmar's recovery, she discovers her beloved cat is dying but finds the next morning he has miraculously recovered. Following Katrin's graduation, a disturbing telegram arrives informing of Uncle Chris' terminal sickness. With mixed emotions, they journey to his ranch and stay with him till death. Katrin has decided to become a writer, but when her first story is sent back she gives up hopes for despair. After a long conversation with a famous writer, Mama convinces Katrin to continue writing. She does so, producing her first-sold story and ends the play by reading it.

The Drama Club offered all those interested in drama a chance to participate in the plays and other small productions given each year. Its members took part in pantomimes and impromptu skits, testing their imagination and ability to express themselves. Drama Club continued the tradition of attending a play of professional quality, but added to the agenda this year was the even greater opportunity for members to get advice and valuable information directly from experienced theatre people. In these ways, club members, under the direction of sponsor Mr. Richard Albright, were able to get a taste of the various skills necessary in the field of dramatics.

Theatre Board specializes in finer aspects of productions

Each year the Theatre Board makes possible the stage productions at LT by supplying the backstage support which is so necessary to supplement the acting which is being done on stage. Work began many weeks before the productions were actually presented. Posters, bulletin announcements, and newspaper articles were arranged in order to better publicize the productions. The properties committee co-ordinated with the director to study the script in order to determine appropriate props which would make the plays more realistic. Other committees were equally busy making necessary arrangements for ushers and tickets. Lighting and stage crews are also under the auspices of Theatre Board. Holding various workshops throughout the year, and planning make-up schemes that would create the desired effects, the make-up committee instructed members in the use of theatre make-up. All committees on theatre board worked together in order to aid in the creation of enjoyable, professional, worthwhile theatrical presentations at LT.

LT's literary talent finds way to Pen and Inklings

Under the joint sponsorship of Miss Jordan and Miss Allen Pen and Inklings staff members produced the annual magazine featuring prose, poetry, and art. Throughout the year, the staff surveyed the school for student art and literary works and read through many prospective poems, short stories, and essays for the publication. To insure a fair selection, the submitted pieces remained unidentified until after a final selection was made. This year, there was more of an emphasis on short stories and essays than previously. Illustrations of some articles were provided by the Art Department to balance the appeal of the magazine.

High in the loft of the soon-to-be-demolished 1892 building, known only to wayward pigeons and lost students, resides the 1968 *Tabulae staff. The staff worked assiduously under the direction of Mr. James Bull to produce this year's book. Retaining a new printer and utilizing different techniques of layout design and typography, the staff strove to modernize the mood of the book.

Journalism skills were augmented by attendance at the Illinois State High School Press Association meeting in September, and the National Scholastic Press Association convention in November. At these gatherings beginning staffers gained additional background information in year-booking.

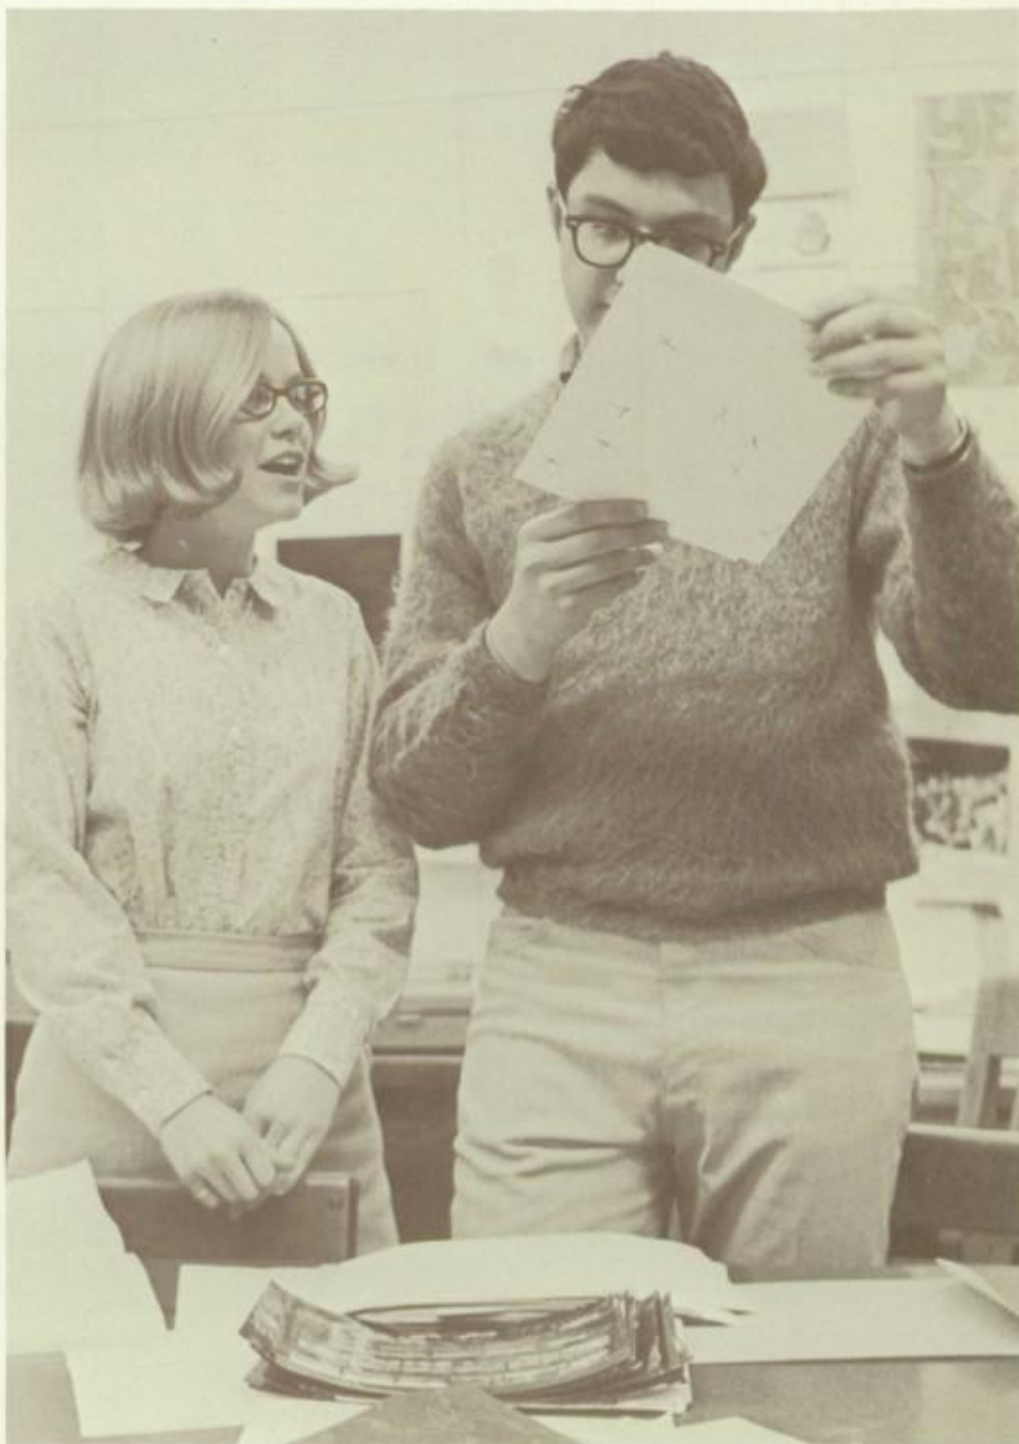

Relieving the pressure of the deadlines were the Christmas party, highlighted by the editors' skit, the Quill and Scroll initiation, the chicken dinners, and the end-of-the year picnic.

In May, new editors were chosen, who, in turn, selected the 1969 staff; then work began on next year's book.

Rushing to complete a section before the all-too-soon deadline arrives, Tab staffers devote an afternoon to writing and polishing picture captions.

Lion staff informs LT of all aspects of school life

Dismayed by the sight of a brick wall growing outside their window, the Lion staff prepared to leave their old headquarters and to move to a new room next fall. Along with the changes of moving came a change from linotype to computerized type setting first seen in this year's last issue. Other innovations included more 2-page spreads and better communications through classified ads and announcement schedules of current events in the Chicago area.

Under the direction of Miss Kay Keefe and the editors, news coverage was assigned to members of English III-J and Journalism II classes. In addition to publishing fifteen issues annually, the staff also sponsored a service project by tutoring at local grade schools. In the spring, senior editors were chosen from the III-J classes and workshops were held to teach them journalism techniques.

LT receives honors from speakers' accomplishments

Under the leadership of head coach Mr. Donald Childs and South Campus coach Mrs. Janis Leich, members of the LT Debate Team were challenged by the proposition, Resolved: That Congress should establish uniform regulations to control criminal investigation procedures. Extensive research and preparation were the chief responsibilities of all debators. Nearly every week, several teams made up of North and South Campus debators participated on a competitive basis with neighboring high school teams. At the prestigious Northern Illinois University and Augustana College tournaments, awards included varsity second places, and individual merit was recognized at the Illinois State, University of Illinois, and Thornridge tournaments.

Enthusiasm and long hours of preparation resulted in LT's highly successful Speech Team this past year. Under the coaching of Mr. Frank Stacey and Mrs. Mary Ellen Smyth, the team was comprised of approximately twenty-five members, including both North and South Campus students. Representing the school in each of ten categories, team members exhibited talents ranging from interpretive prose and poetry reading to extemporaneous speaking on current events topics. While the majority have participated in one of the various speech courses offered by the school, the members were not required to take this training.

The speech team began its activities early in October with the selection of events and also the first steps in training. November marked the Second Annual West Suburban Conference Speech Tournament, held at Hinsdale Central High School. The team was proud to receive the sweepstakes trophy, designating the greatest total number of points awarded to any school at the meet. On the first Saturday in January, the team came home with many honors from the Honewood-Flossmoor Invitational, which is one of the largest invitational competitions in Illinois. The high point of the year was no doubt the competition beginning with the district meet which was held at LT this year. Stealing eight of the ten first places, at the district meet, the winners moved on to the sectional and state-wide competition.

Human Relations develops new awareness

The objectives of Human Relations Council were two-fold: first, to acquaint LT's students with the manifold community relationship problems, and secondly, to be of help through area service projects. Speakers, films, and tapes supplied a background of factual information for personal opinions, and students expressed their own viewpoint in many animated discussions.

Service projects were aimed at covering the various needs of the community. The most important of these endeavors was a tutoring program Wednesday afternoons at the LaGrange Community Center. The "Helping Hand" program, introduced to the council this year, gave students a chance to assist, or simply cheer, elderly persons by frequent visits to their homes.

Compassion and interest in helping people can be channeled in many directions, learns Jim St. Germain as he tutors at the La Grange Community Center.

Kicking off a year of involvement and service for Jr. Red Cross was the collection of canned foods and money to be used by the Community Nursing and Welfare Service in making up Thanksgiving baskets. These were later delivered to needy families. Carolling at several old peoples' homes was planned next. The traditional sale of green carnations which marked St. Patrick's Day raised funds necessary for later projects. Membership of the LT council in the national Jr. Red Cross organization was made official after the annual enrollment drive. In the spring project, person-to-person contact was stressed as members took time to talk to less fortunate individuals during proposed visits to a USO center or the Great Lakes Naval Hospital.

Upcoming Pancake Day requires a thorough run-down of practices and procedures by Mr. Smith, Kiwanis representative, in a before-school meeting.

Key Club stresses community service

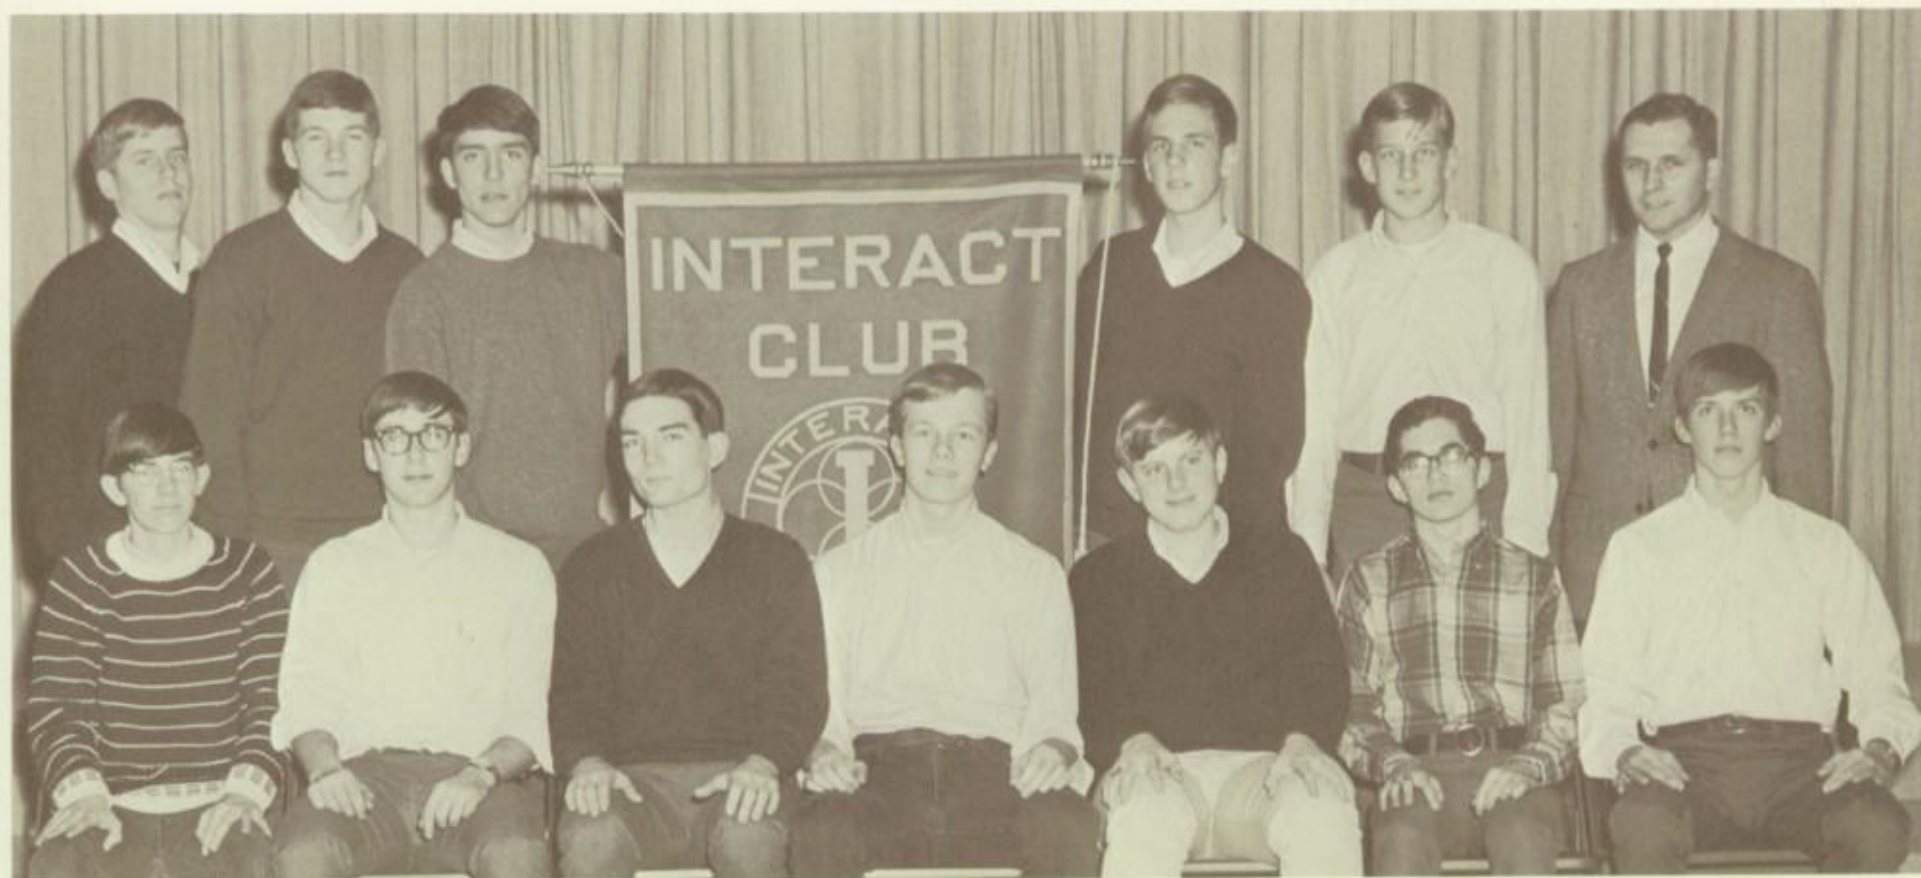

Key Club's second year at LT proved to be just as successful as the first with an increased membership and more varied activities throughout the community. Many members spent Friday and Saturday nights helping to staff the Junior Directors committee at Corral board, or relieving the faculty as ticket-takers at plays and other school productions. Early in the year, Key Club performed an integral service as part of the Corral Bond Drive, while later they sponsored a successful soap drive for Dixon State Mental Hospital. Working with their parent organization, the La Grange Kiwanis Club, Key Club finished the year with service in the traditional Pancake Day.

Interact organizes first district in area

Interact's second year at LT was highlighted by several projects and activities. In the fall members assisted the LaGrange Community Nursing Association by distributing food baskets to needy families. President Gary Rossbach and Secretary Jim Tucker spoke to neighboring Rotary Clubs in the hopes of stimulating the formation of more Interact Clubs. In January, the club organized and held the first Interact District Meeting at South Campus. The club was instrumental in founding the new Interact district within the Chicagoland Rotary district. The sponsor, LaGrange Rotary, provided the club with a variety of interesting vocational programs such as a speech by an ex-Peace Corps member from Argentina. During the basketball season, the club publicized and sold tickets for the LT-RB faculty game held to raise money for Bennett Field. Finally, the club welcomed Rotary exchange student Miguel Lali to its ranks.

A pre-meeting period of friendly discussion between Interact members precedes the main program, Miguel Lalli's slides of Argentina.

LT students interested in music found an opportunity to increase their appreciation through participation in the activities sponsored by Mu Tau.

Led by North Campus President Sandy Stoneham and South Campus President Marianne Jahnke, members played and sang for the entertainment of their fellow members at monthly meetings. In addition, time was allotted for float building and a booth at Club Carnival. The re-location of the Pops Concert from Vaughn Gym to the Auditorium prevented Mu Tau members from selling food during the concert as had been done previously, so the members held a bake sale as a substitute fund-raising project. Also, to raise money, carnations were sold on Valentine's Day. Members extended their appreciation of music by attending Camelot as a group and serving as ushers at West Suburban Symphony Orchestra concerts. The final meeting of the year was highlighted by the election of next year's officers and a performance by the club's sponsors, Mrs. Raybon and Mr. Barber. A potluck for the installation of new officers concluded the year for the club.

New name, new activities characterize Folk Music Club

With both a new name and a new constitution, Contemporary Notes began the year under the leadership of its sponsor, Mrs. Riedel, and president Barb Green. Membership was expanded to include not only students from the former Folk Music Club, but also those with an interest in other types of music. The club attempted to stimulate greater participation by sponsoring group events, such as a trip to a concert and a coffee-house at the Club Carnival. In the smaller meetings members were able to pool their musical talents in order to provide a more enjoyable atmosphere for relaxation.

Departing from the usual meeting plans of individual presentation, Folk Music Club President Barb Green asks for program suggestions.

For students at LT who wish to sing, the Music Department offered a wide variety of opportunities to participate in LT's Choruses. On the freshman level, both a boys' and girls' chorus were formed which performed at the two major concerts during the year, while the girls' chorus also sang at a tea, sponsored by Girls' Club. Sophomores may try out for a mixed group or a girls' chorus, both of which take part in the Christmas and Spring concerts. The sophomore mixed chorus has the added responsibility of a special concert.

At North Campus, selection for the groups is even more competitive because of the added responsibilities. Auditions are needed for entrance into Concert Choir, Treble Choir, and Choir. The Small Choir, a select group made up of members of the choir, performed at several special Christmas Functions in the La Grange area. The choir itself was responsible for the operetta and oratorio. All of the groups combined with the orchestra to present the Christmas and Spring concerts, providing a chance for many students to display their vocal talents.

Under the direction of Mrs. Raybon, Treble Choir's diligent practice makes certain that the next performance will be well received.

Musical groups combine to present operetta

Long hours of preparation, under the direction of Mr. Paul Barber, resulted in fine performances by the Orchestra. They began their year of performances with a repertoire of contemporary pieces of music in the Pops Concert. Combined with the choruses, the orchestra reflected the season in their Christmas concert. A few members of the orchestra displayed their talent in the local and state solo and ensemble contests. The orchestra concluded the year with the spring concert. After a year with many musical performances, the orchestra enjoyed their annual picnic in June.

Rick Crosslin's operetta impeachment speech, delivered countless times to an empty rehearsal hall, will have a new ring in front of a capacity audience.

Through concentration and a Christmas spirit, Vespers come alive with each note.

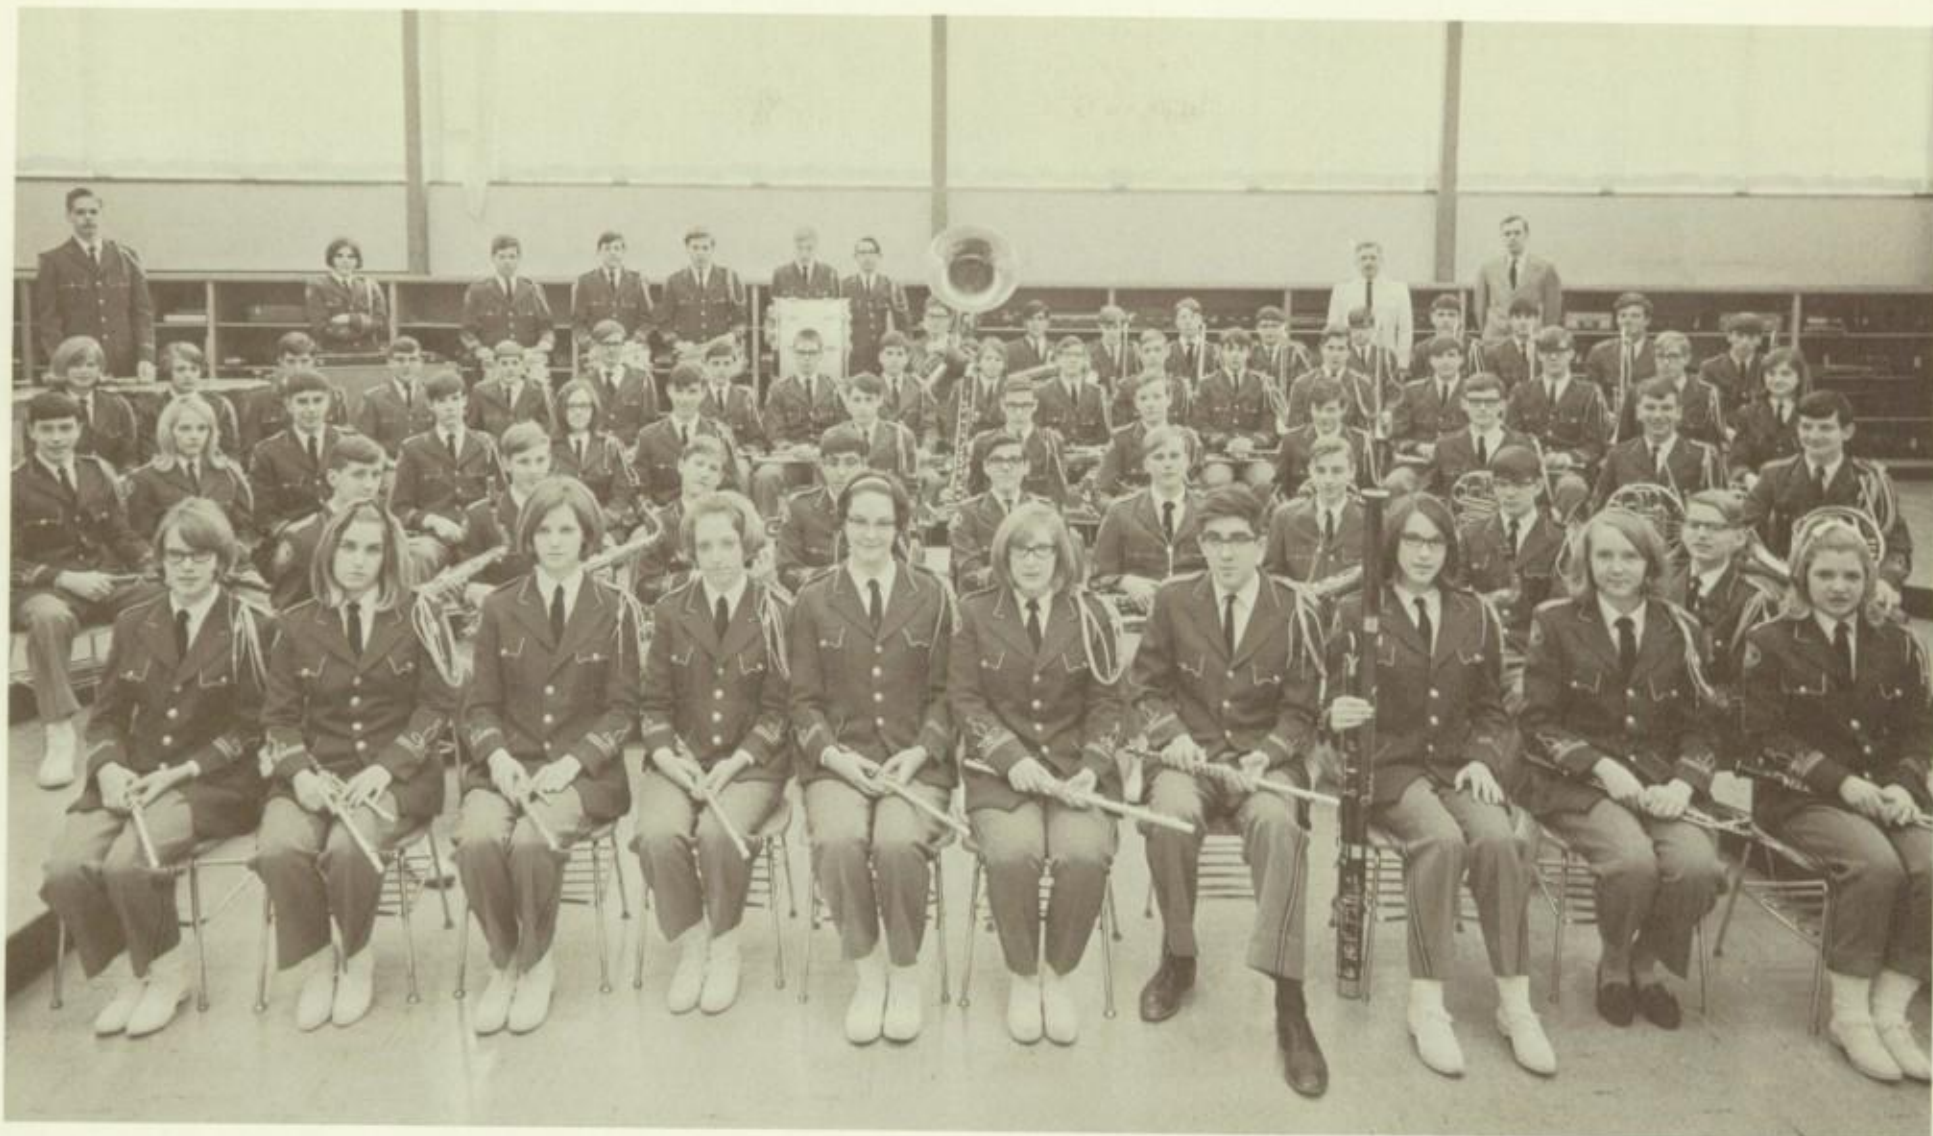

Bands brighten football, basketball games

The Concert Bands, under the direction of Mr. Harold Hilgendorf, met daily to practice for concerts, recitals, parades, and contests. Throughout the year, the bands entertained an array of audiences, ranging from sports spectators to concert patrons. During the fall they performed during the half-time periods at football games. As the year progressed, the bands returned inside to play seasonal music at the Christmas programs and to perform at the Spring Concert. Intermingled among these activities were various contests for solos, ensembles, and the band as a whole. In March there were the state and local contests. Making music an all-year activity was the participation in the Memorial Day parade and a June picnic.

Latin II Club revives ancient customs

Ancient Rome was brought to LT this year by Latin II Club. In early October sponsor Mr. Hammerlund co-ordinated elections in which Sherry Withers was chosen president. Slides of Rome were shown by one of the officers in the first meetings. The meaning of "Saturnalia" was dramatized at the Christmas party. Freshmen were invited to the next club get-together where refreshments were served and Latin games were played. A traditional Roman banquet where togas were in style finished the year.

NC Latin enthusiasts join Cicero-Vergil

Interested Latin students came together this year in the Cicero-Vergil Club. Combining entertainment with the acquisition of knowledge, club meetings included Latin word games, films about Roman culture, and slides of members' trips to Europe. The Roman Saturnalia was celebrated at Christmastime with a party and humorous skits, giving students a glimpse of ancient religious practices. Working closely with the sponsor, Miss Wilson, board members set up plans for the adoption of an Italian foster child by next year's club. At the Club Carnival a whip-cracking master auctioned off members to be temporary slaves. Draped in togas, the members culminated the year's activities with the annual spring banquet. Roman customs were observed with gladiatorial fights, finger foods, and freshman slaves. The club closed the year leaving everyone strengthened in his opinion that Latin as a written language would endure.

The mass of well-wishers having departed, a few French Club members remain to clean up after Didier's birthday party.

Although both North and South Campus French Clubs had late starts, they finished a successful year with very large memberships. Led by presidents Toni Barbaro at North and Barb Flaks at South, members cultivated cultural interests by participating in numerous activities while learning about France and its customs. The clubs, in cooperation with the French classes, attended a concert by the popular French singer, Charles Aznavour, and also held discussions with students who spent the previous summer in France. North Campus French club participants organized a birthday party for French foreign student Didier Pain and paid for a phone call home for him. By viewing films where characters spoke entirely in French, North Campus members became more familiarized with the language while learning about life in France.

Ideas for German Club activities generate from those minutes that board members put into planning interesting programs.

Student travelers brought the members of North and South Campus German Clubs together for the first big meetings of the year by describing their summer visits to Germany with slides. The speakers had participated in the Humanities tour, the English Abroad tour, or family vacations. Christmas was celebrated with a variety of entertainment, including a talk on German customs and traditions, group carolling with guitar and piano accompaniment, and the presentation of two skits written and produced by fourth year students. As part of their regular business, the club helped finance the new Corral by purchasing a $100 bond. In the spring members became acquainted with German foods at the annual dinner at Hessberger's Restaurant in Chicago. After the meal, the diners moved to a nearby theater to see an undubbed German movie.

Spanish Club tutors in inner city

This year the North Campus Spanish club, because of its size, divided into El Circulo Espanol, for second year students, and Los Sabios, for advanced students. El Circulo Espanol, advised by Miss Charlotte Schwartz, went to a Mexican restaurant for dinner in May and held a Piñata Party in December. Los Sabios, sponsored by Mr. Kottler, took a different approach to its activities. Although a new club, the members organized a tutoring program in Chicago in one of the settlement houses, and collected toys at Christmas for the children. They also attended many Spanish- and Mexican- orientated activities, including a Pan-American Day for all Spanish students at the University of Chicago.

Los Castellanos, the South Campus Spanish club, sponsored by Mrs. Winkleman and Miss Bernhagen, highlighted the year with their Christmas celebration—a Pinata party and a buffet dinner. The club completed the year with a speaker from Mexico and an end-of-the-year banquet.

Russian Club studies Soviet culture

A unique language club in that it is open to all interested students at LT, and not just Russian students, is the Russian Club. The club sought to increase membership and student participation in a myriad of activities related to the presentation of Russian culture. Meetings began with an inter-school mixer at Glenbard East, where an impromptu chorus of LT members serenaded the other school with "The Rooster" and other Russian folk songs. The Christmas pot-luck gave members the chance to taste authentic Russian foods. This event was highlighted with a visit by Grandfather Frost, the Russian Santa Claus. The year also included a presentation by sponsor Mr. Petronaitis of slides he had taken on his sabbatical to the U.S.S.R., and by president Dave Winship who went during the summer. Finishing up the year was the spring dinner, complete with a skit and true Russian food.

Hammer and sickle trigger many interesting summer memories for Russian Club president Dave Winship, as he shows the Soviet Union's national flag to club members Carol Zydek and Chris Baldwin.

Vocational educational needs united in VICA

Vocational students were provided with an extracurricular opportunity to become part of the nationwide Vocational Industrial Clubs of America. VICA was created to stimulate worthwhile projects and foster a respect for the dignity of work. Guest speakers, field trips highlight FNA

A trip to the Spanish-speaking Newberry School in Chicago offered the members of Future Teachers of America an opportunity to observe an educational situation very different from their own. The experiences of others were also related to members by various guest speakers during the year. With the help of their sponsors, Miss Corley and Mrs. Haberle, the students presented a tree decorated with silver coins to the Helping Hand School as their service project. These activities aided the members in deciding whether teaching would be a favorable career to pursue.

Attempting to encourage high school girls to enter a career in nursing, Future Nurses of America offered more activities to its members than it had formerly. Guest speakers from local hospitals, educational movies, and field trips to Great Lakes Naval Hospital and Children's Memorial Hospital were among the activities of this year's club. During one of these excursions, the members presented small gifts to young patients at Christmas. Because LT was a home field this year, FNA was unable to provide funds for their usual scholarship for a deserving future nurse through selling confetti at home games.

Scientific studies challenge students

In an informal atmosphere, the members of Astro-Science Seminar conducted discussions on all matters of space sciences. Though the major concern of the club was astronomy, reports were given by club members on other related fields, such as mathematics, optics, physics, and electronics—subjects essential to a proper understanding of astronomy. To augment these interests, the club constructed a six-inch telescope. The annual trips to the Dearborn Observatory at Northwestern and the Adler Planetarium in Chicago rounded out the club's activities this year.

Drawing on enthusiastic science students from both campuses, Bi-Phy-Chem presented another stimulating year of speakers and discussion topics. Meeting once a week, members presented papers on such topics as meteorology, heart transplants, computers, UFO's, and nuclear reactions. The new science libraries at both campuses were incorporated into their program to facilitate research. The constitution underwent a lengthy revision to better fit the needs and purpose of the members. A spring tour of Argonne Laboratory climaxed the year's investigations.

With the foundation for a homemade telescope completed, these Astro-Science Seminar members continue with the delicate tasks of adjustments and lens alignments.

Science Sem. stresses individual investigations

The members of Science Seminar, a South Campus club, devoted their time to the diversified areas of science. The club met every Monday and Thursday throughout the year to discuss present projects and to prepare future topics. These meetings offered a chance for the exchange of experience and instruction by the sponsor and fellow students. Under the supervision of Mr. Arthur Hanson, the club advanced in their knowledge of scientific techniques of experimentation. Beginning the year, a group project was undertaken concerning corrosion. Soon after the basics were taught, the students chose individual research topics and then completed them during the year. Lectures and demonstrations supplemented the project research, with after-school hours allotting enough time for help with individuals.

Lord Rigney, the British Consul, provided Forum members with up-to-date information about Great Britain and its position in the world today.

Forum presents provocative personalities

An opportunity for students to share opinions on contemporary issues with each other and well-known guests was offered by Forum this year. In addition to having discussions in which students could debate current affairs among themselves, the list of guest speakers included John Altorf, former lieutenant governor of Illinois and a candidate for governor; Vinton Bacon, Superintendent of the Metropolitan Sanitary District; W. Russell Arrington, state senate majority leader from Evanston; Ray Page, State Superintendent for Public Instruction; Paul Powell, Secretary of State; Thomas Keane, chief alderman in Chicago's city council; Ronald Smith, from Chicago's Urban Renewal Society; Charles Siragusa, director of the Illinois Crime Commission; and Harold Rigney, British consul. Also featured were films such as "Not in My Block," concerning open occupancy, and "Fail-Safe," dealing with the threat of nuclear war. In between leading these activities, sponsor Mr. Kenneth Luddington and president Scott Evans directed the construction of a prize-winning Homecoming float.

A wig demonstration by a local beauty salon at the first meeting of the year foretold more interesting programs to follow for the members of Home Ec Club. Confirming this prediction, a florist's shop presented a program about the basics of flower arrangement. A boutique sale using contributions from members netted a fund of money to be used as a scholarship for a home economics major's first year in college. As their service project, members created stuffed animals to be given to an orphanage. The boxes became as interesting as the presents inside at a gift-wrapping session in the spring. Making the most of one's appearance was emphasized at a demonstration by a representative from a commercial cosmetics firm. The annual fashion show gave members of clothing classes a chance to model the creations they had been working on throughout the year. The election of next year's officers and a potluck dinner concluded an instructive and entertaining year.

ARS gives members extra creative outlet

By co-ordinating club activities with the art department's curriculum, ARS (Artistically Rebellious Students) members were able to continue class projects or begin more advanced studies in their chosen field of art. A special interest was chosen to be studied each semester by club members. The first semester's work centered around photography, while second semester concentration was on cast and wax jewelry. Various "sketch trips" undertaken throughout the year provided work for wither an art show or hall display. Aside from the more creative activities of the club, ARS members continued to help clubs advertise their activities by poster-making. The annual spring art show supervised by advisor, Mr. Young, and club president, Shari Hoffman, finished the year for ARS.

Camera Club focuses on progress, achievement

In its weekly meetings, Camera Club was able to develop its members' knowledge of better pictures through movies, contests, and the practical application of making a movie for the Club Carnival. The first meetings were concerned with becoming acquainted with the equipment in the dark-room, where the members learned about new techniques that might be useful for the improvement of pictures. At later meetings movies were shown to underline the importance of capturing the mood of the subject in the photograph. Other films told of the importance of photography in industry. Much care was taken that all equipment was used properly by the members. The year culminated in a club contest presenting the best works of the club.

Computer Club teaches concepts of data processing

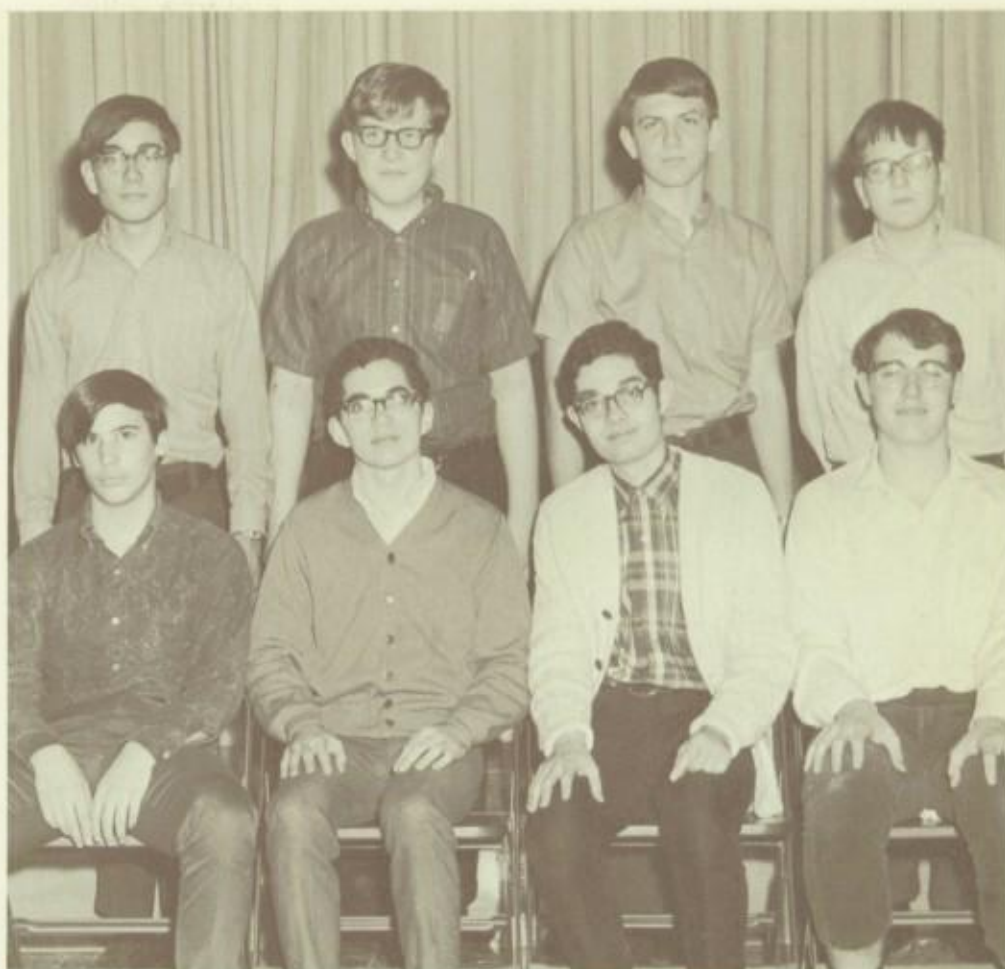

An absorbing outlet has been provided for those who hold a special interest in the field of computer operation and design. Computer Club served as a means of communication and instruction for students interested in this area. Begun two years ago, the club is growing as a result of the aid of its sponsors, Mr. Hirschy and Mr. Brown. This year's program included a series of field trips, including one to the Chicago Police Department, where members had the opportunity to observe the department's elaborate computer in action. Once familiarized with the school's own computer, the club planned and built their own simple machine.

Change the course of history? Impossible. But the members of the War Games Society this year attempted to do just that. "War games" are special game boards which map out familiar battlefields. Military strategy was used by the "generals" who were in control of "armies" of men and supplies to recreate such conflicts as Gettysburg, Waterloo, and the D-Day Invasion. The members like this particular game partly because it is possible to win an historically lost battle if the players demonstrate sufficient tactics.

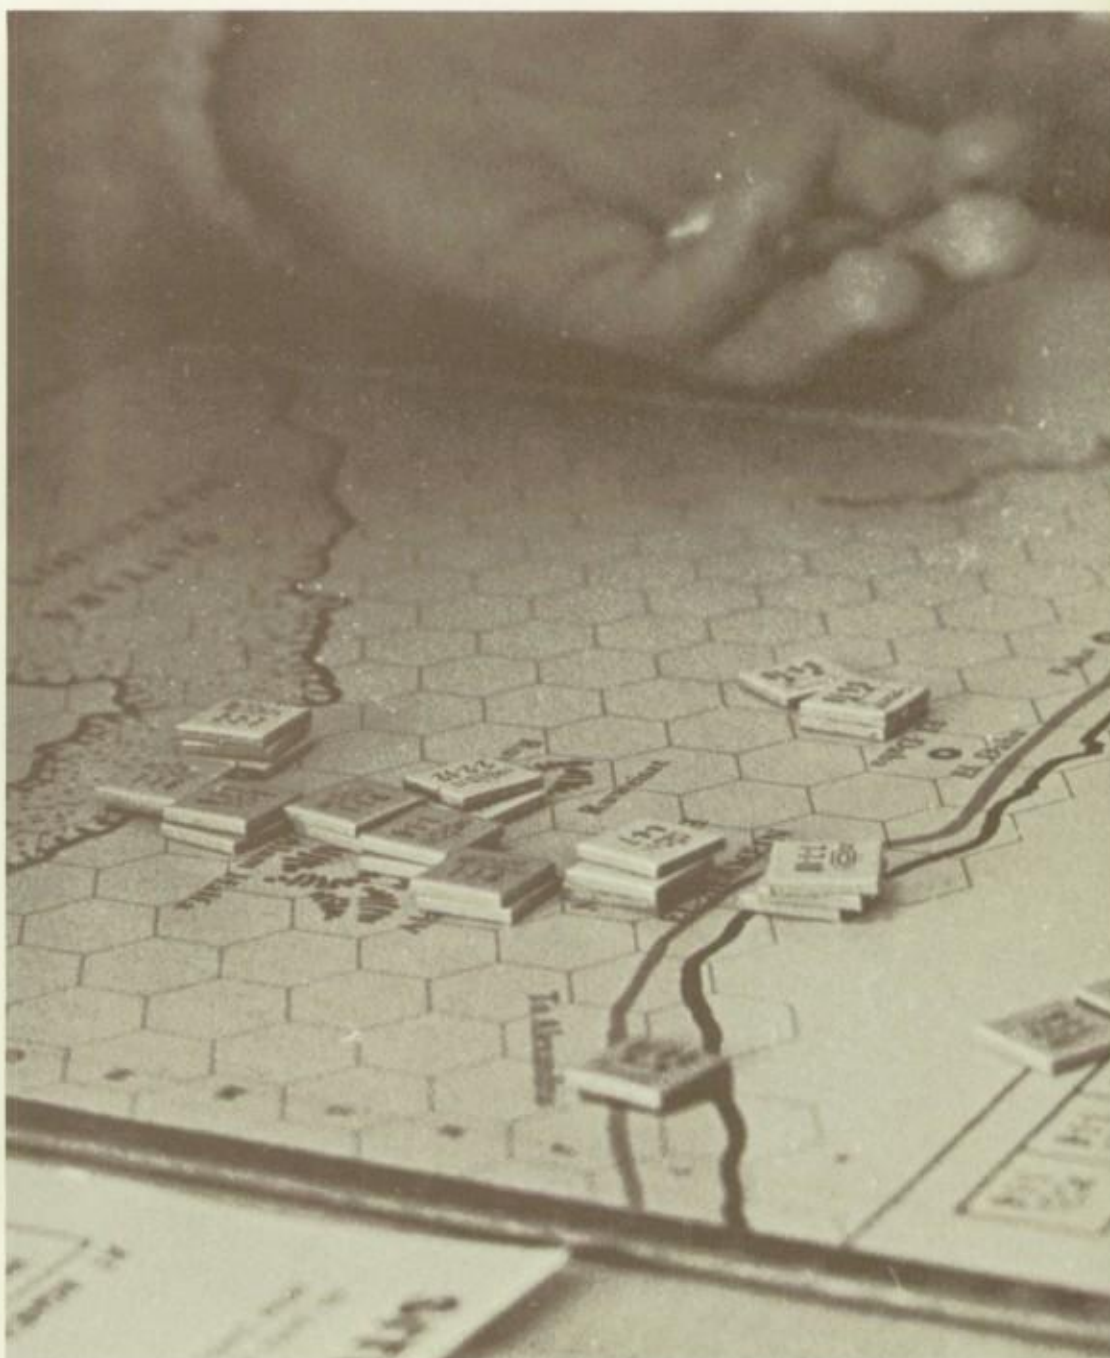

This year as in past years, the society carried on a play-by-mail war game with a group of enthusiasts in Stanford, California. Under the leadership of President Ken Shepro, the War Games Society held a mid-year school-wide tournament so that interest in the club might be promoted.

Accumulated items spread out in front of them, Stamp and Coin Club members get a chance to appraise others' collections.

The purpose of Stamp and Coin Club was to enhance the collections of its members and to add to their enjoyment of the hobby. In keeping with this goal, the club, sponsored by Mr. Edward Radatz and Mr. John Davis, held trading sessions at their meetings every third Tuesday. This was the club's first year at North Campus and the year's activities included speeches by club members on their experiences as collectors, plus two talks by private dealers in the area. The members also participated in a trip to a local stamp and coin showing in the spring. A booth was exhibited at the club carnival. By joining the club, each student was given the opportunity to increase his own collections.

Bridge Club member Tom Digate nervously fingers the eight of spades as he ponders the possibility of success for his next play.

The aspects of the oldest board game were explored by Chess Club this year. An important part of the bi-monthly meetings was spent teaching a greater number of students to play chess. Beginners were first taught fundamentals and then progressed as skill and experience permitted. When a simple mastery of the game was achieved, they were pitted against other beginners and, finally, against more advanced opponents. Sponsor Mr. Anderson and president Mike Smetko introduced a tournament to find the champion chess player of LT. The contest was open to all LT students, and won-loss records were kept.

On the most intriguing games that has ever been played is bridge, and such is the pursuit of Bridge Club. Meeting bi-monthly, this group selected teams which played using pre-dealt hands, a situation technique used to improve without relying on luck. In this fashion the unskilled quickly learned the fundamentals, while the more experienced player bettered his game and assisted others. Tournaments were held periodically, and the best team was chosen at the end of the year. Interscholastic bridge contests were organized so that club members could pit their skills against students from other schools, so that the inexperienced became proficient and the champions more confident.

Skiers have fun, improve skill

LT's outdoor-minded students were given a chance to take to the slopes this year with Ski Club. A fashion show given by a local ski shop early in the fall gave the members an idea of what they would be seeing on the slopes later in the season. President John Goes organized the first trip to Wilmot, Wisconsin, early in January. The club continued to be quite popular this year boasting about 125 members. With the co-operation of sponsors Mrs. Susan Skalinder and Mr. Joseph Rorke, a big trip to Hamilton Lodge near Bessemer, Michigan, was planned. Seventy-four members spent three days skiing at Indian Head Mountain and Powderhorn near Bessemer.

Ski Club finished a quite active year as the snow began to melt. Plans for trips next season were already in the making as only memories were left from this year.

By adding activities this year Saddle and Spur became a more active and rewarding organization. Under the leadership of President Karen Benedeck, the members enjoyed the chance to go riding twice a month at a local stable. It was the first time this activity has been attempted, and it was received with great enthusiasm. The members met at 2:30 at the stable on a chosen Sunday afternoon for instruction and practice. Besides this outside activity, the club also held monthly business meetings when they saw movies or heard from various guest speakers to learn about good horsemanship. One such speaker, Mr. Conley, was a judge of national contests and described the requirements for good marks in shows. The club also visited various shows, a breeding farm, held a hayride, and completed a busy year with a picnic ride.

An interest in automobiles provided the impetus for the formation of LT's first Sports Car Club. Under the leadership of sponsor Mr. John Aikman and President Mark Melichar, the newly founded club organized an extensive program of rallies, gymkhanas, and slalom races. Members found great satisfaction in studying the theory of competition driving and automobile design. Some members also had the opportunity to put this knowledge to use by work on automobiles. In its first year, Sports Car Club accomplished the important goal of establishing the necessary experience and organization needed for a successful club.

aims to improve marksmanship

Although construction eliminated the target range during second semester, Rifle Club was able to hold some activities involving shooting skills this year. Directed by Mr. David Baker, marksmanship tests were administered to prospective members after mastery of the basic skills in order to determine the composition of the club. Over Thanksgiving the club had a mock turkey shoot and at the annual Christmas party members were given a chance to test their abilities by using candles for targets. For the remainder of the year, club meetings were spent discussing riflery techniques and watching films.

FM radio expands educational facilities

After over a year of organization and planning, LT's FM radio station, WLTL, finally began broadcasting in January from the top of the Vaughn Building. Under the direction of Mr. David Fisher, the station presented music and special programs in the afternoon and evening. Divided into major staff departments of programming, engineering, and management, the station is one of the few in the state to be almost totally student-run. Record play lists are compiled from the Chicago area. In addition to music, the staff schedules bulletin announcements, sports coverage and tapes of school plays and faculty lectures.

"Any and every phase of radio" was the motto of this year's Radio Club. Although there was increased emphasis on the aspects of commercial broadcasting due to the formation of LT's new educational FM station, the club still tried to help interested boys in the field of radio to get their licenses for operation of other types of radio, particularly ham radio. Regular weekly meetings consisted of group teaching sessions in radio theory, basic law, and Morse Code. Practical experience was provided through the upkeep and operation of LT's ham station, W9MTJ. Special activities of the club included a field trip to WTAQ and a field day when members tested what they had learned through actual broadcasting at the station.

Aides facilitate administrative operations

During their free periods, LT's many Aides contributed invaluable assistance to the school. Office and Deans' aides collected absentee cards and delivered blue slips while reading thermometers and keeping records were the tasks of the nurses' aides. To enforce lunch-hour rules, door guards ushered unauthorized students from the halls. Library aides kept the library running smoothly by helping students to check out books and magazines. Through operating and maintaining equipment, audio-visual aides assisted in classroom instruction. An annual spring banquet in honor of the aides concluded a year of service to their school.

Of all the aspects of student life, athletics probably changes the least ● Game strategies may vary from season to season, but the disappointment of defeat, the elation of victory, and the responsibility of team work are remembered after the specifics are forgotten ● Though these feelings are intangible, they represent the most lasting contributions of athletics to the individual, whether future athlete or spectator ● And although not every student has the talent to star, every participant can benefit both from the long hours of practice and from the opportunity to compete.

Playing without a home field because of the construction of the new fieldhouse, the Varsity Football Team tied with Glenbard West for second place in the West Suburban Conference. An early non-conference loss to Oak Park only sharpened the desire of the inexperienced gridgers to upset predicted power Glenbard West, which they accomplished by a 9-7 margin in their next game. Picking up momentum, the team defeated Proviso West, tied Riverside-Brookfield, and then helped to provide a successful homecoming for the Class of 1943 by shutting out Maine East, 7-0. After a disappointing loss to first-place arch-rival Hinsdale, the Lions beat Downers Grove, playing in two inches of snow. The season ended with a loss to York which left the team in second place for the season.

Ability, perseverance bring Cubs WSC crown

The 1967 Frosh-Soph Football Team ended its season with Coach Burson's third West Suburban Conference Championship in his four years as head coach. An early non-conference loss to Oak Park fortunately was not an indication of things to come. The second game found the Cubs defeating Glenbard West, their first conference opponents, by a 20-7 score. Utilizing strong running and passing tactics on offense, and supported by an outstanding defense, the frosh-soph team triumphed in their next five conference games over Proviso West, Riverside-Brookfield, Maine East, Hinsdale, and Downers Grove. Not until the final game of the season was the Cubs' perfect conference record marred by losing to York, 13-7.

F-S, Varsity Soccer compile best record in 3-year history

Utilizing a powerful offensive front line and a tight defense, the Frosh-Soph Soccer Team compiled its best record of the Cubs' three-year history. The team went undefeated until their loss to Maine East, whom they had downed previously by a score of 1-0. On a snow-covered field, Maine dealt Coach John King's club their only setback by scoring two goals, a high for LT's adversaries during the season. The team bounced back to handily defeat its last two opponents. The sophomores' excellent 9-1-1 record combined with the freshman's undefeated, untied season, gave the South Campus soccer teams a composite record of 15-1-1.

Depending on speed and endurance rather than size and strength, the Varsity Soccer Team under the direction of Coach John Aikman compiled the best varsity record in soccer's three years at LT. A series of losses and disheartening ties plagued the Lions, who played six scoreless overtime quarters in the first few weeks of the season. Finally, late in the season, their conditioning began to show as the varsity outthustled their opponents for two wins and a tie in their last four games. Although eliminated from the St. Mel Tournament by Maine East, the Lions came back to defeat St. Joe the next day and retain the Electro-Motive trophy. Combining the varsity record of 2-5-6 with the junior varsity record of 2-3-1, North Campus soccer had an overall record of 4-8-7.

Striding behind the Varsity, the Frosh-Soph Cross Country Team established a 3-4-0 West Suburban Conference record and a 6-4-0 overall record. Strong performances were given by sophomore veterans as well as by new frosh harriers. The team ended the season with a fifth-place finish in conference competition.

Capitalizing on the strength of five lettermen, a sophomore brought up to the varsity, and foreign student Dave Franklin, the Varsity Cross Country Team compiled a 4-3-0 record in the always-tough West Suburban Conference and an overall 7-3-0 record. The team took fourth place in the conference meet, losing only to perennial state powers York, Glenbard West, and Proviso West. With an all-out effort at the finish of the season, the Lion harriers took second place in the District meet and traveled downstate for the first time in many years. There the team placed thirteenth in a field of twenty-six teams.

Varsity advances to 'Sweet Sixteen'

Taking advantage of superior height and experience, the Varsity Basketball Team had a highly successful season, including regional and sectional championships and a second-place berth in conference standings. Coach Art Sandusky's team forgot two non-conference losses to Thornton and Homewood-Flossmoor in their conference opener, beating Glenbard by twenty points. The R-B home court jinx continued as the Lions dropped that game for the eighth year in a row. The team bounced back to win the rest of their games, except two well-played contests to York, preventing them from winning first place. Hinsdale tried drastic measures in the form of a stall, but this failed to stop the team as they went on to win, 39-29. The team's high-powered offense, driven by all by all-conference choices Gary Culea, Doug Faulds, and Peter Kron, breezed through the regionals and sectionals to a berth in the sweet sixteen. Unfortunately, the team's hopes ended there, as they were beaten by Crane in the Super Sectional.

Conversation of the game's progress is temporarily suspended as benched team members watch some tense mid-court action.

With two guards back to defend against the fast break, LT hopes to add to its already decisive lead with a bucket after the jump ball.

Utilizing a decided height advantage and the services of several talented freshmen, the Frosh-Soph Basketball Team tied for conference honors and advanced LT's President's Cup hopes. Coach Roger Johnson's team, riding the crest of two first-place finishes and three seconds in the past five years, finished with a 12-2 conference record and a tie for first place. Although the Cubs started slowly by losing their initial game, the team consistently improved to the point that they won the St. Charles Christmas Tournament for the second year in a row. Behind the standout performances of Owen Brown and Marcus Washington, the team won all their conference games except a two-point heartbreaker to R-B and their final match with York. Between these two games, the Cubs compiled a ten-game winning streak, beating every team in the conference and avenging their earlier loss to R-B with a thirty-point rout on our home court, but the final loss to York prevented the team's winning the trophy outright.

Although the Varsity Swimming Team was held back by sickness early in the season, they still came back to establish an 8-4 overall and a third-place conference record. Under the direction of coach Robert Peryon, the team utilized the YMCA pool for early morning practice. Although the tankmen lost to a strong Hinsdale Central team, they beat other weight-bearing schools, R-B and Hinsdale South, by sizeable margins. Team captain Mark Danner, also voted the most valuable team member, led the team to a third-place district finish and a twenty-fifth place in the state meet.

Facing many of the same problems as the varsity, the Frosh-Soph Swimming Team also attained a third-place conference rating. Losing one less meet than their varsity counterparts, the team, under the direction of coach Kenneth Lumb, finished with a 9-3 record. Sparked by good performances all around and by team captain John Nicolai, the team finished strong against opposing schools. Looking forward to the new pool at North Campus, the team members hope to better their record next season.

Strong individual performances brightened an otherwise disappointing year for the Varsity Wrestling Team. Coached by Mr. Bert Kraus, the squad placed sixth in the West Suburban Conference with an over-all record of 4-14—a record unfortunately low in comparison with past LT outcomes. Senior Mark Chamberlin, reversing the team's record with a strong 14-4 standing in conference competition, was named along with co-captain Dan Riccio to the All-Conference team. Junior Steve Kohout was another individual standout, moving through the District and Sectional competition into the State meet. A powerful group of juniors promises a better showing for next year.

Vastly improving upon last year's fifth-place finish, the Frosh-Soph Wrestling Team completed their season with a creditable 10-5-3 overall record and a second-place conference finish. The Cubs, coached by Mr. Suchomel, started the season with two wins and a tie. After losing to eventual conference champ York by one point, the disheartened Cubs dropped two more matches, but ended with three victories in a row.

The Lions gained unprecedented victories over Glenbard West and York on the way to a 7-6 record overall. Disappointed by a sixth place finish in the Conference meet, the team nevertheless bounced back for a thirteenth place in district competition. Individual standouts Paul Foran and Jim Ballotti led the team there, qualifying for the state meet. The season closed with the election of Chris Zitney as the most valuable team member.

Equaling their last year's performance, the Frosh-Soph Gymnastics Team completed the season with an overall record of five wins and eight losses. The Cubs, coached by Mr. Duane Foster, started the season with a 73-59 victory over Oak Park. After losing two close meets, the team bounced back with a thirty-one point victory over Downers Grove South. The season continued in this uneven fashion, with four wins and four losses in the next eight meets. The Cubs ended their season with a sixth place ranking in the Conference meet.

Athletic opportunities opened by Intramurals

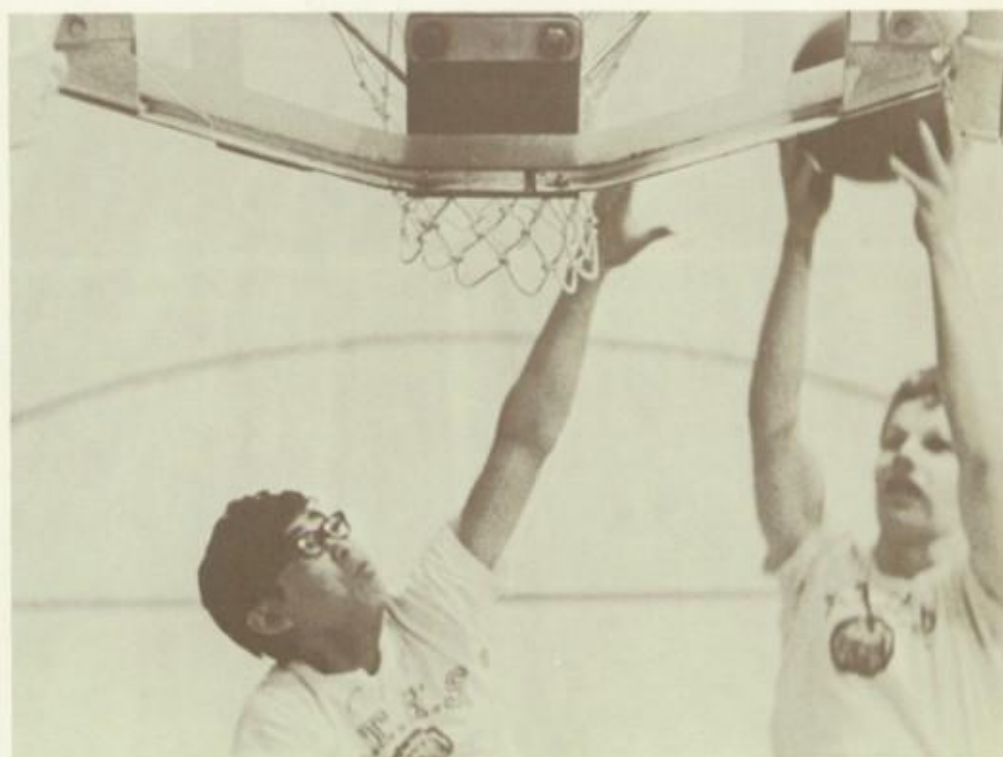

This year LT's Physical Education Department again provided a wide variety of Intramural Sports. In the fall, tennis offered South Campus boys a chance to improve their net skills. As usual, basketball was a popular winter sport at North Campus where the junior teams finished the season with a victory over the seniors. Spring softball competition required a sound knowledge of game procedures as well as speed and skill on the field. Participation in this program has provided an opportunity for boys unable to play in inter-scholastic sports to take advantage of other athletic activities. Besides developing physical fitness and athletic skills, intramural sports encouraged constructive competition and good sportsmanship.

In a pre-game scrimmage rules are abandoned as ten individuals loosen up with some every-man-for-himself action.

Infield practice precedes the game as both batters and fielders loosen-up.

During that rare intramural respite from collision, a free throw, players get ready to move in for a possible rebound.

Although being a letterman is a great honor, there are some responsibilities, such as restraining the crowds and sweeping the floors.

Lettermen exemplify school spirit sportsmanship

Lettermen's Club is an organization designed to help promote athletics in the student body. This service club comprised of varsity letter winners met once a month to plan activities and set regulations for games. Among the duties of the lettermen was ushering at home basketball games and wrestling meets, while members enjoyed other more glamorous opportunities such as escorting the Homecoming queen and her court at the pep assembly. The club's major activity this year was co-sponsoring the faculty game to provide funds for the new Bennett Field. Last fall, president Mike Briskey and Mr. Jackson planned the Lettermen's Club Kick-Off dance which turned out to be one of the most successful dances presented by the club. The many participants in the club illustrate the school's interest in athletics and a willingness to serve LT.

Sports-minded girls participate in GAA

The success of the Physical Education department depends on the guidance and performance of the Senior Leaders. While enjoying the privilege and honor of being chosen leaders, they also have the responsibility of assisting in a girls' physical education class and aiding in after-school GAA activities. At least a "C" average in other courses must be maintained, and girls must exhibit good leadership qualities. Along with teaching a class for credit, the girls in red shorts attend a leadership class twice a week in order to learn the fundamentals of physical education.

Serving, returning, and vollying the birdie are all aspects of badminton involved in an afternoon of play.

Girls with particular interest and ability in athletics were able to supplement gym class activities through participation in the Girls' Athletic Association. Dance, apparatus, basketball, field hockey, and volleyball were offered after school and with participation points being awarded each time they attended. Awards were given at a banquet in the spring to members who received the required number of points. Interscholastic competition in tennis, archery, and badminton gave girls an opportunity to compete with teams from other schools. The tennis team placed first in its division while the archery team placed second in conference and seventh in the state postal competition. New activities included roller skating, offered this year for the first time. At the Mother-Daughter tea at Christmas time and the Dad and Daughter night members' parents met and were given a summary of the club activities involved.

Twirlers entertain spectators at half times

Under the watchful eyes of Mr. Hilgendorf and Mrs. Skalinder, the '67-'68 Twirlers began the year with many hours of practice and composing routines to perform during halftime at football and basketball games. The squad also displayed their skill in concerts and parades throughout the year. This year, the twirlers also had new uniforms made. The climax was the state Twirling Competition, a part of the Illinois State Music Contest.

After more than three hundred hopefuls tried out for the Pom Pon Squad, the judges chose the most poised and energetic girls. The selected twenty-four girls imaginatively created and vigorously rehearsed exacting performances for the half-time intermissions at all home football and basketball games. Captain Kathy Stout and co-captain Jan Olander led the Pom Pon squad through their intricate programs. By sponsoring mixers and selling pom-poms at the games, the squad sought to finance the purchase of needed uniforms—a goal that was realized with the purchase of new navy blue-and-gold sweaters. Under the supervision of Miss Penny Sullivan and Miss Martha Stout, the Homecoming performance and the State Street Christmas Parade highlighted their quickly-paced year. Challenged by their part in increasing LT's sportsmanship, the squad performed for audiences with smiles and determination.

As the opponents drive the ball closer and closer to our basket, all eyes are riveted on the action.

Enlivening sports events and promoting school spirit were some of the responsibilities of the Cheerleaders. After hours of work in which skills were co-ordinated and cheers were perfected, the squad was able to back up the players with a variety of original and lively cheers. To foster sportsmanship, preceding each home game they acted as hostesses of a potluck for the opposing school's cheerleaders. Besides boosting enthusiasm, the cheerleaders sold Homecoming buttons and programs at football games. With the money raised from these activities, the group, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Darlene Kress, purchased a set of new uniforms for the Frosh-Soph cheerleaders and Homecoming corsages for each squad member.

Newly-formed Pep Club unites school spirit

In order to bring together all those wishing to actively support LT Pep Club was revived this year. Under the guidance of sponsor Mr. Stepp and president Pam Malysiak, the club gave its enthusiastic vocal support to football, basketball, and spring sports teams, led several pep assemblies, and widely publicized coming athletic events. Scrolls, signed by LT students, were sent to Hinsdale and R-B to thank them for the use of their football fields. Before each game the locker room was gaily decorated, and "good luck letters" were sent to those dressing for the games. The first all-campus assembly was held in the Vaughn gym to boost spirit and to acquaint the student body with the lesser-known winter sports of swimming, gymnastics, and wrestling.

A unique first—the Winter Sports Assembly—evolves through the intense discussions of Pep Club members.

Balanced track squads face tough schedule

Relying on the individual strengths of nine returning lettermen, the Varsity Track Team strove to retain the first place conference position it attained last season. Although faced with tough competition from Proviso West, Glenbard West, and York, the squad and coaches Mr. Max Armer, Mr. J. O. Jackson, and Mr. Duane Foster hoped to overcome it with all-around balance in both field events and relays.

The Frosh-Soph Track Team expected a challenging schedule of meets with West Suburban conference powers York, Proviso West, and Glenbard West. The squad, coached by Mr. James Kilbreth, hoped to at least equal last year's second place finish.

Coached by Mr. Richard Leiber, the Varsity Baseball Team hoped to repeat last year's undefeated finish. With the return of six lettermen, the team prepared for a demanding schedule of games with strong conference schools Glenbard West and Maine East. Though a number of powerful hitters graduated last year, the team hoped to compensate for the loss through a nucleus of experienced pitchers. Backed up by a battery of strong hitters, the Frosh-Soph Baseball Team believed its success hinged on anticipated improvement in the pitching staff. Though the Maine East and York teams looked menacing, the Cubs, under Coach Robert Burson, hoped to better last year's sixth place conference finish.

With Hinsdale recognized as the conference power and competing against strong Glenbard and York teams, the team, coached by Mr. Carl Nemecek, looked for a first division conference finish.

Hoping to better last year's second place conference finish, the Frosh-Soph Tennis Team anticipated tough matches with Hinsdale and other perennial conference tennis powers. Coached by Mr. Paul Nemecek, the Cubs were aided by seven second-year men.

This year's squad, under Coach Mr. Bert Kraus, hoped to equal last year's seventh place in the state meet by capitalizing on strong team play. Practicing after school on the local courses, the team expected to develop the needed proficiency to challenge other area teams.

The Frosh-Soph Golf Team, coached by Mr. Arthur Suchomel, hoped to equal last year's undefeated conference first place finish by utilizing strong second-year men. The sophomores were expected to provide the backbone of the team until the freshmen had more interscholastic competition experience.

As our educational system changes, it becomes more apparent that the quality of a school is in a large part determined by the quality of its teachers ● A teacher may inspire or simply direct a student, but in either case, he is a means for drawing out students' opinions and giving insight into classroom material ● The ability of the student to apply classroom knowledge to a life situation is an expression of the success of his school.

Dr. Donald Reber
Superintendent

Because of LT's immensity, the services of the school are administered by three men. Superintendent Dr. Donald Reber, whose job includes overseeing the two campuses and conferring with the Board of Education, took on extra responsibilities. After the successful passage of a referendum in spring, 1967, Dr. Reber worked closely on construction plans with the School Board. Though it posed some difficulties, the construction was badly needed both to expand and to improve the classroom facilities.

The job of Mr. Ronald Deabler at North Campus and Mr. Edward Zimdars at South Campus is to hire teachers and to co-ordinate their efforts to best encourage and teach students. While carrying out these duties, both men were faced with over-crowded conditions caused by the construction.

The aim of the Department of Pupil Services, directed by Mr. Thomas Hansen, was to give each LT student a feeling of importance in the school. In the spring before graduation, the senior counselors visited all eighth graders to become acquainted with them and to introduce them to the high school. In freshman social studies classes, the students studied the history, organization, and services of LT for three weeks. Senior leaders visited with the freshman guidance groups to speak, and aptitude tests were given. In addition, Career Day offered an opportunity to hear talks given by successful people working the fields in which a student was interested.

During his four years at LT, each student had at least four conferences with his counselor, attended approximately five guidance sessions each year with his communications group, and was benefited by the services of the deans, nurses, speech therapist, psychologist, and social workers.

Reading and writing skills emphasized by English Dept.

Recognizing the importance of an extensive English background for the college or vocational pursuits of the students, the English Department continued its efforts to assure each student of an understanding of poetry and prose and a control of his own writing. Under the direction of department chairman Mr. Aldo Mungai, several committees were formed last summer and fall to investigate the various possibilities in updating programs and in initiating new ones. Among these committees were groups studying composition programs, film listings, study skills, and English program levels. Seeing the advantage of studying a language at its source, the department sponsored a summer program for twenty-two students at Oxford University in England chaperoned by Mrs. Sarane Siewerth. This six-week program taught by University lecturers emphasized the study of English literature and modern British culture. A probing year marked by constructive changes and valuable experiences reflected the widening scope of LT's curriculum.

Improved media modernize Library Department

While the Library Department offered no courses, it served all students by supporting the curriculum with its collections and services to teachers and students. The department, headed by Mr. Charles Koch, began its reorganization to develop a learning resources center through the introduction of non-print media, such as transparencies, filmstrips, art prints, and tapes to supplement the printed material. Two videotape recorders were acquired to assist and record experiments, demonstrations, speeches, for both immediate and future playback. An educational media specialist was employed at North Campus to work in the selection, preparation, production, and evaluation of the non-print materials. A librarian in charge of technical processing directed the cataloging and processing of library materials at South Campus.

A first: fourth-year modern language courses

Two exciting new additions to the Language Department under Miss Eloise Birney were the French and Spanish Abroad programs. Offering the student the advantage of being exposed to the language in its native country, the courses attracted many students. Besides classroom instruction in foreign universities, the courses gave the students increased listening and comprehension practice.

While the summer activities of the department were greatly augmented, the regular curriculum did not undergo any radical changes, although greater emphasis was placed on the oral-aural aspects of the language. For the first time, fourth-year courses were offered in all modern languages. Extensive use of visual aids, tapes of foreign speeches, and classroom guests helped familiarize students with the historical and cultural background of their countries.

The emphasis was on understanding rather than solely on covering the subject matter in the Social Studies Department under Chairman Mr. James Larson. The department initiated changes from the more traditional programs so that a student could digest a large amount of material while making creative and accurate decisions. Lab experiences during which students put themselves in the roles of adult citizens were given greater importance. New was a full-year world geography course offered at all levels. The other curriculum change was the elimination of the one-year comprehensive world history course, for which a two-year early and modern world history sequence was substituted. To teach a student more precise methods in questioning and in answering, the department stressed the study of comparative statistics and primary sources.

Serving both the physically and mentally handicapped young people of LT, the Special Education Department continued a program coupling meaningful vocational training with individual counseling. A staff of teachers and counselors, under the direction of Mr. C. Lewis Martin, dealt with the learning difficulties of the handicapped in small classroom sessions.

Every special education student became the focal point of a four-or-five year plan, beginning with basic class curriculum at the freshman and sophomore levels and followed by school-oriented jobs in the community during the junior and senior years.

Encouraging advances in the instruction of the handicapped, the school sponsored its annual summer workshop, which brought prospective teachers, social workers, and psychologists from several universities to guide all types of handicapped in contract work for manufacturing firms. Through these varied programs, the department strove to develop in each student a responsible and purposeful attitude by equipping him for a meaningful life in his community.

Comprehension, application are foremost in Math Dept.

While the specific mathematics curriculum may vary from year to year, the basic goals of teaching do not. Comprehension of the reasoning process and the ability to apply mathematical logic in problem solving remained foremost in mathematical subjects.

The Mathematics Department, under the direction of Mr. Frank Allen, did not find the burden of the lost junior college teachers and courses this year excessive, because the department had already established strong honors-level courses to fill the gap left by the lack of junior college facilities.

Among the curriculum changes in the math department was the sectioning of second-year algebra to the later needs of the students. Capitalizing on the addition of a computer to the school, computer math courses were expanded.

The introduction of overhead projectors this year greatly aided classroom instruction and saved teaching time. A summer committee composed of two teachers studied the uses of the projectors and discovered new ways of presenting classroom materials on them.

Science Dept. adds course depth for enthusiastic students

A variety of courses were furnished by the Science Department this year. South Campus offered laboratory science, biology, and for some sophomores, chemistry. Physical science, biology, chemistry, and physics were available at North Campus. Students in the accelerated science program on the senior level were able to take advanced placement chemistry, taught by department chairman Mr. Donald Axelson. These students not only received high school credit, but also could obtain possible college credit or advanced placement status. Another special course, Investigative Studies, met at 7:30 a.m. for those who wished to follow their own individual interests. This class allowed a student to display his talents in the Westinghouse Science Talent Search. For the Bausch and Lomb Science Contest, students undertook certain problems and then prepared a paper explaining their solutions.

The department hoped to give the student knowledge of scientific experimentation and study. As a result, the student became more able to question the functions of his environment.

Chairman of the Art and Industrial Arts Department

The Industrial Art and Arts Department, directed by Mr. William Gooch, planned additions and changes to the basic curriculum this year in order to best use the eventual space to be made available by construction. The department planned a changeover to a studio format for instruction in the arts section. Students involved in that section concentrated primarily on commercial art projects, student publication, and arrangements of ornamentative exhibits throughout the school. Other outlets for creative artwork were the Scholastic Art Contest and the local and state poster contests in which LT figured prominently.

The industrial arts section modified its curriculum, offering for the first time semester courses at North Campus and full-year courses at South. Projected additions for the section will include a wider range of course choices, including auto shop, electricity, metals, and photography.

For the second year, the department, acting in conjunction with area businessmen, offered the diversified occupations course at North Campus. This two-credit course combined on-the-job training with classroom instruction to give the student employment experience in the field of his choosing. This pre-vocational opportunity plus the wide variety of courses all fulfilled the aim of the department by developing in each pupil an active interest in industry and industrial life.

Combining the musical talents of the students, LT's Music Department, under Mr. Harold Hilgendorf, entertained at games as well as at concerts. Two major productions were the Christmas Concert, which exhibited the accomplishments of the orchestra and choral groups, and the Spring Concert, which included the North Campus Band, Orchestra, and all choral groups singing en masse. In addition to regular choral, band, and orchestral classes, students had the opportunity to take supplementary courses, such as Harmony and Music Appreciation, and to participate in the before- and after-school activities of madrigals, ensembles, and Small Choir. In an effort to improve individual performances, many students entered and gave an excellent representation of LT in various local, district, and state contests. Those who achieved a superior rating at the state contest were asked to perform at a North Campus assembly. A highlight of the year's musical efforts was a one-day workshop and concert of the District 1 All-State music organizations held at LT. The festival brought together a select group of band, choral, and orchestral students from high schools through northern Illinois. Through these various classes and extracurricular activities, the students were offered many opportunities to develop and further an active interest in music.

Variety in Home Ec courses increases enrollment

Practicality and creativity were the main concerns of the rapidly-expanding Home Economics Department, headed by Mrs. Iva Pidcock. Filmstrips, student reports, and class discussions suggested ideas to students regarding class problems and outside projects. In the enlarged Child Development and Family Relations courses, the solution to home problems was stressed. Clothing students, in addition to learning basic sewing skills, also were taught to recognize well-made apparel. The Housing and Interior Decorating courses attracted many boys because the classes specialized in the planning and furnishing of homes, with the accent on originality and total cost. Foods and Nutrition courses rounded out the varied curriculum of the department. While the home economics classes were made up mostly of girls, boys enrolled in the courses also received valuable training in management and consumer buying.

With the availability of equipment formerly used only in junior college courses, the Business Department was able to add two new subjects to its curriculum this year. Having gained background from basic training in the classroom, students who continue in this area may either enroll in more advanced courses or acquire a beginning job. Another innovation under department head Mr. Roy Latimer was the introduction of skill builders in shorthand and typing classes. The boys' section, headed by Mr. Lester Glick, had a schedule which included a daily calisthenics routine followed by a seasonal sport such as touch football, soccer, basketball, wrestling, gymnastics, softball, and track and field. New golf and archery equipment made these activities an additional part of the program. Senior boys could elect co-recreational volleyball, golf, or badminton for a part of their program. The intramural program, highlighted by basketball, tennis, and softball, supplemented the in-class sports. Activities offered in the girls' department, headed by Mrs. Bonnie Glick, included a wide variety of team and individual sports, modern dance, basic rhythms, gymnastics, fitness, and health education. A three-year physical education leadership program gave girls with special interest and ability an opportunity for further development. These girls were enrolled in special sections, and at the sophomore and senior levels they acted as assistants in regular physical education classes. Almost all imaginable intramural activities and even interscholastic tennis, archery, and badminton were offered to girls by GAA.

Although many students were not aware of it, the Service Personnel constituted an essential part in the running of the school. Clerical work was managed by the North and South Campus secretaries who also provided numerous additional services from change for a quarter to information as to the location of a certain teacher.

Custodians not only kept the halls and rooms clean, but also were involved in repairing and in keeping the grounds neat. The cafeteria staff prepared school lunches and also served at various school functions and club dinners. Caring for the daily health problems of the students was the nurses' responsibility, who also had to be ready for any emergency that might occur during the course of the day. The efficiency and effectiveness of the service personnel made them an indispensable, integral part of LT.

Armed with determination brought about by a year's experience, the Sophomore Class came back to South Campus with a new sense of leadership and optimistic thoughts for a good year. Aware of the problems of the freshmen in adjusting to LT life, the sophomores supplied understanding and help while serving as guides during freshmen registration and orientation. Later, Homecoming gave the class an occasion to work together as they constructed their float, "The Farmer in the Dell Throws Maine East in the Well." Led by president Don Hensel, the class chose as their colors burgundy and navy and approved the class of '70 button design from submitted entries.

Class board members succeeded in planning the class assembly in January. In February, with the helps of sponsors Mr. Jakubka and Mrs. Krisciunas, they held a successful class party entitled "Bonnie and Clyde." Relief from increased class work and a heavier activities load was found in the end-of-the-year "Tab" signing party. After that, the Sophomores left South Campus determined to besiege North Campus in the fall.

Perplexed Juniors soon adapt to North Campus

"Now what did I forget to bring?" thinks Don Gottschlich as he opens his locker to another day at LT.

Making the transition from modern South Campus to the tradition-filled halls of North provided the Class of '69 with the challenge and opportunity of becoming upper classmen. After class board was elected and organized, unity, spirit, and originality produced the Homecoming float, "Lettuce Squash the Demons and Turnip a Victory," which won first place in its division. Centered around a convention atmosphere the class assembly exhibited the unique and varying talents of the Junior class in skits and live combos. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Kimbell Cusak and Miss Sharon Ruda, class board and President Phil Haag organized the class party, "Sock it to Us, '69" which offered an evening of class spirited activities. After hosting the Senior Salute in May, the Tab signing party officially culminated their year as juniors and thoughts turned to their final year at LT.

Caught up in a time of transition, the Class of 1968 underwent many transformations in their four years at LT ● The obvious changes brought about by construction and increased academic opportunities were witnessed by the class as a group, but less apparent and more personal was the growth in individual maturity fostered by continuous innovation ● As the class evolved from a position of dependency to one of responsibility, individuals gained needed qualities of leadership and insight that left them better prepared for a more complex future life.

Seniors

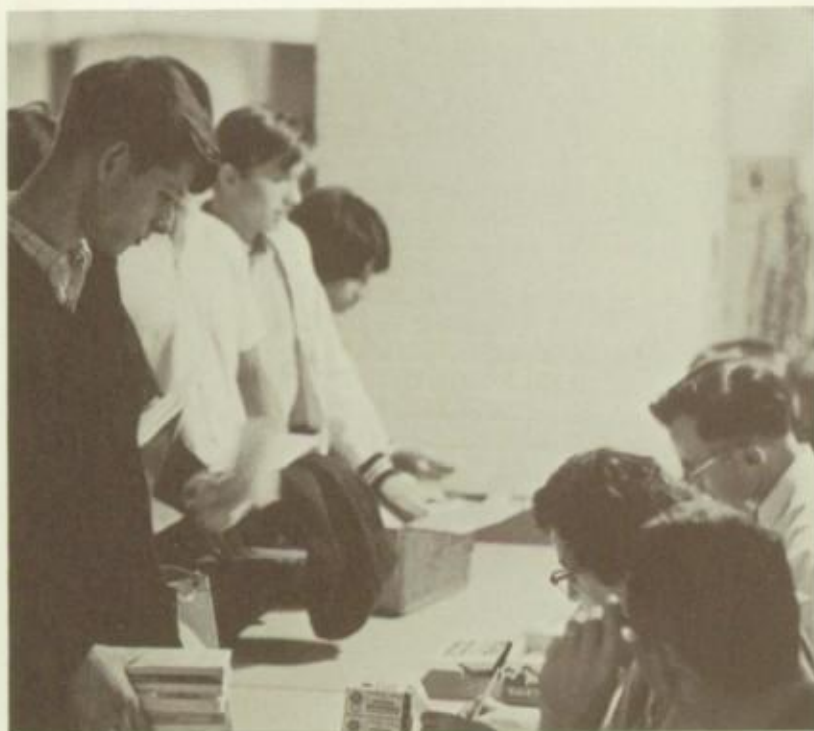

A mixture of concentration and determination shows on senior Diane Fromm's face as she rushes to complete the float.

Heavy coats and pride in their school keep these seniors warm on a chilly November day.

Awaiting his part in the pre-Glenbard game pep assembly, John Goes hopes that he, as Noil, will be able to boost student spirit.

Seniors move quickly through the efficient registration lines that confused them only a year ago.

A Saturday morning finds the senior class float undergoing hectic finishing touches before proceeding to the start of the parade.
